

Sticky Mars soil getting nourished in search for life

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first sampling of Martian soil is in the Viking lander, nourished by light, water vapor and "chicken soup" as scientists search for life on the Red Planet.

When the robot lander's arm dug the sample and deposited it in three chambers Wednesday, it represented the first time that earthlings began to analyze substances on another planet for life.

The experiments will take weeks, and answers are not expected soon. But scientists displayed immediate joy that the project was underway.

Until a pin that had jammed the robot arm was dislodged last weekend, there had been doubt that Viking could pick up the dirt.

"I'm delighted — ecstatic. I can't tell you how thrilled I am," said Dr. Gerald Soffen, a scientist.

One piece of bad news intruded: An instrument to search for molecular "building blocks" of life signaled it did not get a sample of soil.

Engineers said it may have been a false signal, or Viking's extended digging arm may have come up empty when it tried to collect the soil sample for the instrument.

Called a gas chromatograph mass spectrometer (GCMS), it is designed to search for organic compounds. It could check the results of biology experiments, and it might be able to find signs of life that once existed on Mars even if such life failed to survive.

"I'm not at all happy to hear that word about the GCMS," said Dr. Fred Brown, a biologist.

Officials said they would order Viking to photograph the soil-receiving funnel Friday to see if dirt was placed in it.

There was some new information about the nature of the soil itself. The mechanical hand left a six-inch trench, about two inches deep, in the ground. The dark, steep-sided trench did not collapse, as it might have if the surface was extremely dusty.

Instead, a project spokesman said, it looked "like wet sand" — indicating the soil was sticky, although not necessarily moist.

Inside the lander, in the $50-million miniature biology lab, the dirt dropped in and a carousel immediately started rotating. It distributed soil to three chambers — about the size of flashlight batteries — in which the samples are being incubated.

Ford picks up support

GOP fight turns to Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford grabbed an edge in the fight over Mississippi's uncommitted delegates as he and challenger Ronald Reagan turned their attention today to Pennsylvania, now the other major battleground in the contest for the GOP nomination.

Ford picked up the endorsement of Clarke Reed on Wednesday, robbing Reagan of the influential Mississippi state chairman's backing in the struggle for the state's votes, the largest uncommitted group headed for the Kansas City convention.

With Ford now having 1,097 votes in The Associated Press delegate survey, Mississippi's 30 votes could put him within reach of the 1,130 total needed for the nomination. Reagan now has 1,023 votes, with 139 delegates uncommitted.

Reed said in a statement released in Jackson, Miss., that he defected because Reagan picked Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker, a liberal, as his running mate.

"I believe having this kind of vice president is too big a price to pay for the nomination," Reed said.

He said Ford promised him he would pick a running mate who would be "philosophically compatible with himself and the mainstream of the Republican party."

Even before Reed's statement, Ford and Reagan backers in Mississippi said the President was picking up strength among the delegates, who had long been considered to heavily favor Reagan.

Although Reed said he was not going to ask other delegates to follow his lead, his defection could give Ford a majority of the delegation's votes, enough to control all 30 ballots under a unit rule.

As the Schweiker choice was cutting into Reagan's Southern backing, Schweiker himself sought to turn his alliance with the former California governor into a plus for Reagan.

He prepared to talk to the 103-member Pennsylvania delegation at a Capitol meeting late today to try to swing votes to Reagan.

After meeting with Schweiker, the delegation was scheduled to go to the White House to meet with Ford, who now holds a 70 to 6 edge in the delegation, with 27 delegates undecided.

Reagan said from his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch, that Reed earlier had pledged to support him.

"I was disappointed that Clarke won't keep his longtime personal commitment," the former California governor said.

As the GOP nomination fight heated up, Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter received a 5½-hour briefing from CIA Director George Bush on Wednesday. Bush said the briefing went into a "great deal of detail" on top-secret intelligence matters.

Reed said he would vote for Ford in the Mississippi caucus in Kansas City. Traditionally, the state's delegation has gone to the convention uncommitted and then voted as a bloc, following the wishes of the majority of the delegation.

"I have not asked any members of the delegation to support any candidate and I do not intend to do so," Reed said.

The reaction among Mississippi GOP leaders was predictable: Ford backers were happy and Reagan supporters vowed to continue the fight.

"I am very happy with it, because Clarke is one of the most astute politicians in the country," said Ford campaign manager Gil Carmichael. "This serves as a signal to the rest of the state delegation that we have the power now to get on with the selection of the President and bring unity to the party."

Parochial aid vote faces new obstacle

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The leader of an organization which opposes the use of tax money for parochial schools asked today for a court order to block the official counting of the votes on a proposed constitutional amendment which comes before Missouri's voters next Tuesday.

Dr. Hugh Wamble, president of the Missouri Coalition for Public Education, asked that Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick be restrained from canvassing the vote and that Gov. Christopher S. Bond be prohibited from certifying the outcome.

The proposed constitutional amendment is listed as Proposition 7 on a special ballot which voters will cast in connection with the Aug. 3 primaries. It would permit the appropriation of state money for secular text books, bus transportation and services for the handicapped at parochial and other private schools.

The Missouri Constitution prohibits the use of public money directly or indirectly for the support of private schools.

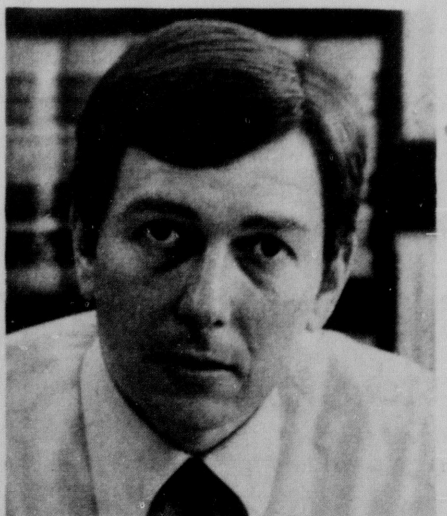

Dr. Wamble filed his action in Cole County Circuit Court, where on June 21 he lost a similar effort on a legal technicality.

Judge Frank Conley of Columbia told him then that some constitutional questions he raised would better be left to another suit and another day.

Wamble came back today with his reiteration that the proposed constitutional amendment is itself unconstitutional and that Kirkpatrick and Bond improperly handled the official process of getting in on the ballot. Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth also is a defendant, with Wamble contending that the title which the attorney general prepared for the question on the ballot is faulty and that he unduly delayed the court's consideration of his earlier attack on the parochial amendment.

Ashcroft in favor of judicial reform, uniform sentencing

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

John Ashcroft

Wrapping up a three day campaign swing through western Missouri with a stop in Sedalia, John Ashcroft, Republican candidate for state attorney general, announced his support of Proposition Six and uniform sentencing Wednesday.

Proposition Six, a constitutional amendment to be decided on by the voters in the Aug. 3 primary is an attempt at judicial reform by making municipal and magistrate court judges associate circuit court judges.

Mike White, Jackson County administrator, last week became the highest ranking official in Missouri to oppose the measure. White's concern is that the plan does not include a price tag and may be too costly for the state to adopt.

Ashcroft, who announced his support of the amendment at a noon luncheon in his honor in Kansas City Wednesday told The Democrat-Capital that White's fear is baseless.

"The judges who will receive an increase in salary will be taking a great burden off the circuit court judges," said Ashcroft in a Democrat-Capital interview. "The clog in the judicial system is in the circuit courts." He further noted that, at present, it takes an average of seven months from the time of arrest for a case to come to trial.

White, in announcing his opposition of Proposal Six, said it would cost an additional $1 million to operate.

"I have not been made aware of any significant cost problem," Ashcroft said.

"In my view, I would suggest that if the administration of such a program of justice calls for a needed increase of cost, this is something society has to bear."

Another area of judicial and penal reform concerning Ashcroft centers on sentencing. He declares his full support of "unified sentencing."

"I think there should be a narrow range of sentencing instead of a wide range," said Ashcroft. He explained that instead of confronting convicted persons with potentially long sentences and placing them on parole, each convicted felon should be required to serve some time in jail.

Ashcroft said Maine has a program similar to his proposal requiring first time offenders who are placed on probation to spend from 60 to 90 days in jail. He said such a system has a two fold effect.

Persons learn what it is like to be incarcerated and what it would be like if they broke parole.

"Those who commit crimes ought to see the inside (of a jail)," Ashcroft said. He added that he has talked with youths who have gone through such a program, "and it had a startling effect."

Further decrying the present sentencing procedures, Ashcroft said, "The indeterminate sentence is a failure. It teaches people to manipulate parole boards, not be different people."

Ashcroft indicated that he was comfortable with Atty. Gen. John Danforth's record. However, he said "I don't feel we can be satisfied to rest on our laurels."

He pledged to continue a practice he claims Danforth originated.

"For eight years," Ashcroft said, "attorneys have been hired on the basis of quality, with no reference to political affiliations. I will continue that policy."

Ashcroft said he will maintain a toll-free WATS telephone line to the attorney general's office to encourage the prompt reporting of consumer frauds.

Ashcroft also said he "would not hesitate to go outside Missouri (to hire assistants) if I felt they could do an exceptional job."

Another innovation he plans to institute, if elected, is an annual publication of attorney general's opinions.

Assessing his chances of victory in November's general election, Ashcroft said they are "excellent. I am concerned about the state and people know I am concerned."

In 1974 Ashcroft was defeated by George Lehr for state auditor. However,

Bus kidnaping

Second suspect caught

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — James Schoenfeld, the second of three suspects sought in the Chowchilla bus kidnap, was captured without a struggle today after he was spotted driving a van on a freeway south of San Francisco.

At the moment he was captured, Schoenfeld's brother, Richard, 22, was being taken from the Alameda County jail at Oakland for a three-hour drive to Chowchilla for arraignment in the bizarre abduction of 26 children and their bus driver.

One suspect in the July 15 kidnaping remains at large. He is Frederick N. Woods IV, 24, whose father owns the quarry in Livermore where the children and the bus driver were imprisoned in a van for 18 hours before they dug their way out.

James Schoenfeld was booked at the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City on kidnap and unlawful flight charges, officials said.

Both Schoenfelds and Woods were charged in a warrant issued last week with 27 counts of kidnaping and 16 counts of robbery. The robbery charges stem from the taking of clothes and other items from the kidnap victims.

After a week-long odyssey in which he was reported seen in several areas of the Pacific Northwest, James Schoenfeld, 24, was seen Wednesday night by "someone who knew him" as he drove an Idaho-licensed van through Menlo Park, a San Francisco Peninsula community only a few miles from his home.

An all-points bulletin was issued and the search continued through the night.

According to early reports, James Schoenfeld was spied again by police at Mountain View at about dawn on U.S. 101, a major north-south freeway. Schoenfeld turned off the highway into Menlo Park where he was captured at about 6:55 a.m. just off the freeway by San Mateo County deputies and officers from the Menlo Park and Redwood City police departments.

FBI agents then reportedly took him to the San Mateo County jail in Redwood City. The van, which had been purchased at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, was found to contain camping gear, toilet articles, old clothes and sleeping bags.

There was no immediate word on whether the van contained any weapons.

Republicans lashed at rally

Stating that the United States has "undergone eight hard, demoralizing years...under the leadership of the first United States president to resign and the man that pardoned him," local attorney Craig Cassing Wednesday night addressed some 90 local Democrats at a rally at the Pettis County Courthouse Assembly Room.

"Eight years ago, for the Republicans, it was like the title of that Charles Dickens novel, 'Great Expectations,'" Cassing said. "Now, it is like the 'Poseidon Adventure' where everything is turned around and upside down."

Attacking Republican rule on all levels, Cassing was particularly harsh on the current race by President Ford and Ronald Reagan to win the Republican presidential nomination.

"Yes, you've got 'Death Valley' Reagan and 'fumbling' Ford fighting for the right to lose to Jimmy Carter," He stated.

On the state level, Cassing criticized Gov. Christopher Bond, whose private financial assets, he claimed, "are blinded in a trust." Cassing also charged that many of Bond's fellow Republicans in the state are becoming increasingly disenchanted with him, citing as evidence the fact that Bond was unable to exert enough influence to secure pro-Ford national convention delegates at the Republican State Convention.

Also addressing the audience were Democratic Fourth Ward Council candidate Ray Hendricks, and mayoral candidate Carl Franklin.

Franklin summarized his accomplishments while serving as councilman and the responsibilities he has dealt with while serving as interim mayor.

"This has been a very busy time for me, these past few weeks, because I have had to come in as mayor and supervise the drawing up of a $4,077,000 city budget," Franklin said. "This budget passed unanimously because each of the councilmen were involved in determining it and also all department heads were thoroughly consulted—they had to account for every dime they asked for."

Franklin noted he has also been involved in drafting the final application to federal officials for $270,000 in federal Community Block Grant Development program funds for the coming year. The city is also currently completing the process of securing easements to permit various street and storm sewer improvement projects to begin. A total of $479,130

Nova Scotia fishermen renew interest in escargots

HALIFAX, Canada (AP)—Fishermen here in Nova Scotia are renewing their interest in escargots — sea snails they once considered a nuisance.

The delicacy will be caught and processed for marketing in Canada and the United States by the end of this summer.

Michael Drebot, product development officer for Nova Scotia's provincial Department of Fisheries and coordinator of the project, said, "We should be able to sell all the escargots the fishermen can catch."

The province has spent much time and money in the last two years setting up large-scale production of sea snails, which had previously been discarded or destroyed by Nova Scotia fishermen.

Drebot said escargots latch on to lobster traps and have been a nuisance to lobster fishermen.

"Now, Nova Scotia has the opportunity to turn this bycatch into a profitable industry."

The government has been working on the project in conjunction with the Nova Scotia firms of O'Neil Fisheries Ltd. and IMO Foods Ltd.

O'Neil will be responsible for steaming and processing while IMO will look after canning.

Unlike foreign imports, the snails marketed here will be thoroughly cleaned. Drebot said European snails are canned immediately after they're caught.

Cost will be the same as French and German escargots, between $5 and $6 a package of four and five-ounce containers.

More than 90 per cent of hotel operators and restaurateurs in the Halifax-Dartmouth area, who participated in a government-promoted tasting session about a year ago, agreed the Nova Scotia snails were of premium quality, he said.

Most of the sea snails are being harvested in an area adjacent to Digby in the Bay of Fundy, but researchers have found they can also be fished along the southwestern shore from Digby to Yarmouth and along the Cape Breton shore.

Although the shellfish will be caught now as a byproduct of the lobster fishery, the provincial government has developed a special trap for catching the escargots. It will be distributed to the fishermen later if market demand warrants accelerated catches.

The fisheries department has also sent a new, specialized separator and washer to O'Neil Fisheries. The machine will halve processing time.

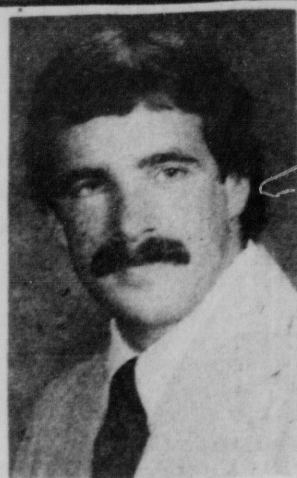

Interest in the project was initiated by a visit to a large Japanese processor of land snails about two years ago.

In addition to the sale of escargots as gourmet food, the government is considering the utilization of the smaller snails fully-prepared with spices, butter and other additives.

The government is also looking at the sale of an escargot paste for use as a spread.

University found in violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a ruling against "reverse" discrimination, a federal judge says Georgetown University violated the civil rights of a white student by setting aside most of its first-year law school scholarships for minority applicants.

"There is no justification for saying that a 'minority' student with a demonstrated financial need of $2,000 requires more scholarship aid than a 'nonminority' student," U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch ruled Wednesday.

The judge said Georgetown's four-year-old practice of earmarking 60 per cent of its first-year law school scholarships for minority students was "arbitrary" and a violation of the Civil Rights Act's bar against discrimination on the basis of race.

The ruling is the latest in a series of federal court victories for persons who claimed they were subject to "reverse" discrimination by schools, corporations or government agencies seeking to provide opportunities for racial minorities or women.

Gasch's decision was a personal victory for J. Michael Flanagan, who sued Georgetown because there were no scholarships left for white students by the time he was admitted in 1973, although there were still scholarships for minorities.

Flanagan complained that the minority students who garnered 60 per cent of the grants formed only 11 per cent of the class.

Flanagan, 24, has since graduated and lives in suburban Alexandria, Va. He could not be reached for comment.

The judge said he would hold a future hearing on Flanagan's request for $3,700 in damages that the former student claimed he should have received in aid.

Georgetown's attorneys argued in vain that the school's financial aid policies were a "bona fide affirmative action program to increase minority enrollment." They also claimed the school was not subject to the civil rights law, but Gasch said it was since Georgetown accepted $7 million in federal funds to build its Law Center.

Woman can use counseling help

Dear Dr. Lamb — I hope you can help me. I have a rather different problem. I am a fearful person. I stopped smoking in 1963 when the report came out about cancer because the thought terrified me. Now, since I've learned that the percentage of cancer in the wives of uncircumcised men is higher, I'm afraid of that. I was always bothered by bleeding vaginal ulcers but since I've kept away from my husband I haven't had any.

My husband doesn't do anything about getting circumcised. I am also terrified of pregnancy and that's another reason.

My husband smokes and I have tried to talk to him about it because our two daughters and I don't and he fills the house with cigarette smoke and endangers us. I don't think it's fair. When I say something he makes a nasty remark about giving up everything, or not doing anything else — referring to sex. He knows about my fears of cancer and pregnancy, yet he's so nasty about it.

What can we do? I can't enjoy sex with these large fears and how can I get him to quit smoking? Please answer either way as I consider it a major problem in our lives and I have no one else to talk to. I am also deathly afraid of contraceptives of any kind so don't suggest those.

Dear Reader — Let me say at the outset that you could benefit from some professional counseling. I think your fears in so many areas are a sign that you need help. They may also be camouflaging the real problems you may have in your marriage.

Despite the fact that a widely syndicated advice column recently stated that uncircumcised men increase the chances of their wives getting cancer of the cervix, the information is out of date and incorrect. More recent studies have shown that the relationship to cervical cancer is more complex. Girls who have multiple sex partners and start sex lives early are more prone to cancer of the cervix. Even a virgin can develop it, of course, but her chances are far less. The danger of cancer is to the uncircumcised male, not his partner.

There are some relatively safe contraceptives. You can consider an IUD. Or if that frightens you, and you and your husband are through having children, you could have a tubal ligation. Then you would be free of side effects of any contraceptive and free of danger of getting pregnant.

I agree that it is most disagreeable to live with someone who smokes when you do not. You could compromise though and your husband could smoke outside the house or he might even be willing to quit if you would make an effort to correct some of the problems between you. However, you must realize that when you are afraid of sex, afraid of pregnancy and then also want him to quit smoking, he might have legitimate grounds for complaining. Your letter shows that you expect him to make the changes, get circumcised, and quit smoking, yet you don't want to use contraceptives. I don't doubt that these problems are straining your marriage. Communists seeking spot on the ballot

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Petitions seeking a spot for Communist party presidential and vice presidential candidates on the general election ballot in Missouri were filed Wednesday with the secretary of state's office.

Under state law, the party must have collected signatures of 2 per cent of the registered voters in each of five congressional districts to have their candidates' names placed on the ballot.

Thomas Crenshaw, state party leader, said he believed the 25,400 signatures collected in the St. Louis and Kansas City areas would be enough. About 18,000 valid signatures are needed to comply with the law.

Crenshaw said, however, that if the secretary of state rejects the petitions, the party would go to court challenging the constitutionality of the state's signature requirements.

The Communist party's presidential candidate is Gus Hall and its vice presidential candidate is Jarvis Tyner. They failed to come up with enough valid signatures in the state four years ago.

The last time Communist party candidates were on the ballot in Missouri was in 1936, when they collected just over 400 votes in that general election.

In March 1965, the first U.S. combat troops arrived in South Vietnam.

This is the first Viking Orbiter 1 picture of Phobos, a satellite of Mars, and it shows a heavily cratered side of the moon that was viewed by Mariner 9. North is at the top of the picture. Large crater near the North Pole is approximately three miles across, while craters as small as a few hundred meters can also be seen. Phobos' diameter when viewed from this angle is about 14 miles. Only about half the surface is shown here. (AP Wirephoto)

Death Notices

James A. Vannoy

James A. Vannoy, 83, formerly of Sweet Springs, died at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Buena Vista Nursing Home, where he had lived for the past five years.

He was born in Tazewell, Tenn., on Dec. 2, 1892, son of the late J.H. and Martha Lewis Vannoy. He spent his early life in Tennessee, and lived in the Sweet Springs Community from 1948 to 1966, where he farmed.

He was married to Miss Docie Dee Bray on July 19, 1914, in Granger County, Tenn. She preceded him in death on Aug. 6, 1966.

Mr. Vannoy was a member of the Blackwater Chapel United Methodist Church.

Survivors include five sons, Paul Vannoy, Green Ridge, Everett Vannoy, Hughesville, John Vannoy, Route 1, James M. Vannoy, Western View Estates, and Carl Vannoy, 135 South Park; a sister, Mrs. Laura Venable, Tazewell, Tenn.; a half-sister, Mrs. Gladys Bolton, Harrogate, Tenn.; a half-brother, George Vannoy, also of Harrogate; eleven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Ewing Funeral Home, with the Rev. W.A. McVey officiating.

Pallbearers will be grandsons, Dean Vannoy, J.B. Vannoy, Richard Vannoy, Kent Vannoy, Floyd Vannoy, Don Vannoy, Mike Vannoy and Harold Vannoy.

Burial will be in the Green Ridge Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Hearing in local manslaughter case is now underway

A preliminary hearing for George D. Clayton, 31, 105 South Prospect, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with a June 17 fatal car-motorcycle accident, was scheduled to begin in Magistrate Court at 1:30 p.m. today.

Clayton is charged in connection with the deaths of Wallace Calvert, 36, Heritage Village Trailer Park, and Carol M. DeVors, 21, Homestead Trailer Court, who were killed on Highway 50 west of Sedalia.

The Highway Patrol reported that Clayton was allegedly eastbound in the westbound lane of the highway and struck the motorcycle carrying Calvert and Miss DeVors head-on.

Clayton is free on $5,000 bond.

Man reports camera stolen

Dale Maggard, 908 Leone, reported to police the theft of an $80 camera from his car at 1:45 p.m. Wednesday while it was parked at 101 South Ohio. He reportedly left the car for five minutes and found the camera missing when he returned. It was not reported whether the car was locked.

Raymond Chapman, 1919 South Lamine, reported the theft of five rabbits valued at $25 from a pen outside his home sometime Monday.

The body will arrive at the funeral home at noon Friday, and will lie in state until 10 a.m. Saturday.

Court blocks $1.5 billion gas increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals is blocking a $1.5-billion a year increase in natural gas price ceilings while opponents seek to cancel the new ceilings.

The court issued an order Wednesday to temporarily stop the higher rate ceilings approved on Tuesday by the Federal Power Commission. Opponents said the new rate ceilings are so close to rates charged for unregulated intrastate gas that they amount to an FPC attempt to abandon its legal responsibility to regulate interstate prices.

A coalition of 16 petitioners challenged the FPC rate ceilings Wednesday, asking the appellate court to prevent collection of higher rates until the court hears the case. The order granting a delay did not say if the appeals court would accept the case for review.

Issued by Judges Charles Fahy and Spottswood Robinson III, the order imposed an immediate stay of the increase "until further order."

Opponents of the higher FPC-approved rate ceiling said they also were asking the FPC to reconsider its decision approving the boost.

As approved by the FPC, the new rate ceiling would allow interstate natural gas pipelines to double and triple the previous price ceiling on new natural gas supplies sold by producers to the pipelines.

The FPC said this would mean the average residential customer would pay about $15.60 more per year for natural gas, an increase of about 6 per cent. The FPC said the actual amount would depend on where in the country the customer lives. For instance, a customer in Florida might face a yearly increase of about $5.20 a year, but one in Ohio, where winters are colder, would see his bill boosted by some $23.14.

The petitioners in the court case said it would take the FPC at least 60 days — probably longer — to review their request. They argued that without a court order blocking the new price ceilings, the higher rates would cost consumers at least $367 million during the appeal.

They said there is virtually no chance consumers could get a refund if the FPC or the courts eventually overturn the price increase.

The petition urging the court to block the new rates claimed the increases eventually will be ruled illegal by the courts.

The FPC has maintained a price ceiling of 52 cents per thousand cubic feet on gas brought into the interstate market since Jan. 1, 1973. At the same time, unregulated gas sold in intrastate markets recently has commanded an average of $1.55 per thousand cubic feet.

he says the pardon of former President Richard Nixon that August in combination with President Ford's amnesty plan made election difficult for many Republicans that year. He hopes a state GOP slate he calls, "one of the best" will aid his bid for office this year.

Commenting on the national scene, Ashcroft said he feels the Republican National Convention to be held in Kansas City next month can be a rallying point or a negative point.

He also said Missouri should have a presidential primary to "take the vote out of caucus rooms and put it in the voting booths."

Tangshan reported virtually wiped out

TOKYO (AP) — The major earthquakes that rocked a heavily populated industrial area of northeast China may have virtually wiped out the big city of Tangshan, according to reports from witnesses today.

The press here carried accounts from Japanese technicians who were injured when their Tangshan hotel collapsed in the first and most severe quake Wednesday. "Most buildings in our sight collapsed," said one of the survivors.

The reports, from Peking, also said a 23-member French friendship delegation that returned to Peking from Tangshan Wednesday night gave the impression that the city of one million people was devastated.

The Chinese Communist party said today there were "great losses" of life and property in the hardest-hit areas east and southeast of Peking. Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported "extremely serious damage and losses" in Tangshan, which is about 80 miles southeast of the capital.

Aftershocks were reported continuing. Hsinhua said the first quake was centered in the Tangshan-Fengnan area and "comparatively strong shocks" were felt in Peking and Tientsin, China's third largest city with a population of 4.3 million.

"Since the quake was not predicted in advance, it is believed that many of the residents of Tangshan did not have time to escape," the Peking office of Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, reported.

Kyodo said damage in Peking "has been held to the minimum" but "damage of considerable scope is reported in Tientsin."

Former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia, who was in Tientsin when the first quake hit, said most modern structures withstood the shock, but older buildings "collapsed completely." He said the first tremor was followed by "very large explosions on the horizon" and many aftershocks.

Foreigners in Peking said the casualty toll in the capital did not appear to be heavy. The U.S. Liaison Office reported that all Americans in Peking and Tientsin were safe, and the head of the American mission, Thomas Gates, offered the Chinese government American aid.

"Our great leader Chairman Mao, the Party Central Committee and the State Council (cabinet) are very much concerned for the masses of people in the earthquake-stricken area," said Hsinhua.

It said Communist party officials of Hopeh province rushed to the quake area to direct quake-prevention and relief work. People in the areas "have been promptly organized in a united fight against the effects of the earthquake," the agency said.

It was the first official Chinese report on the quake, and it was not issued until 20 hours after the first shock.

The U.S. Earthquake Information Service recorded the first quake at 3:40 a.m. Peking time Wednesday and said it measured 8.2 on the Richter Scale.

Beef quota loopholes a threat, King says

Citing a possible "Doomsday knell" for Missouri beef producers, Richard King, candidate for the Republican nomination in the Fourth District Congressional race, Wednesday urged a reform of federal trade regulations that currently allow foreign beef producers to evade established import quotas.

"I have written to John J. DaPonte, who heads the federal Foreign-Trade Zones Board, requesting that meat be removed from the items which can be brought into a free-trade zone," the Independence mayor told newsmen here.

Cooked, canned and cured meats now imported into the Puerto Rican Free-Trade Zone are not included under quotas which the United States has negotiated with other beef-producing nations.

"Although only a small amount of beef is now processed in the Puerto Rican Free-Trade Zone under this oversight in the federal regulations, the long-run impact on American agriculture could be disastrous," he said. "Citizens from overseas are making a profit at a time when many U.S. beef producers are lucky to break even."

Addressing the rising crime rate, King said the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, an agency through which federal monies are channeled to state, county and local law enforcement agencies, "is the biggest single waste of the taxpayer's dollar to come along in the last ten years."

"Crime is up 47 per cent over the last five years," he said, "and dollars aren't going to solve the problem."

Crime prevention programs, such as increasing the size of police staffs and marking valuable items with identification numbers, should be initiated on the local level, he said.

If elected, King said he would establish a permanent office in the state as well as a mobile office in which he or staff representatives would visit every county in the district at least once a month.

It was announced at the press conference that Mrs. Janet Monsees, vice-chairman of the Missouri Republican State Committee, has endorsed King in his Congressional bid.

House votes reprimand for Sikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly today to reprimand a subcommittee chairman, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, on two counts of financial misconduct.

It was the House's first punishment of a member since 1969 when it fined Harlem Democrat Adam Clayton Powell and stripped him of seniority.

There were only three speakers in the debate before the reprimand against Sikes, a Florida Democrat.

One of the speakers, Rep. Andrew McGuire, D-N.J., said the House ethics committee should have recommended a stiffer punishment than censure. He said members should consider whether to take away Sikes' chairmanship of the House military construction appropriations subcommittee next year.

"The committee has found conduct that cannot and should not be tolerated by this House, or anybody or the American people," McGuire said.

The House approved the reprimand by a 381 to 3 vote, with five members voting present. Voting against the reprimand were Reps. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., Tom Steed, D-Okla., and Olin Teague, D-Tex.

Sikes made no statement to the House in his own defense but received permission to insert a statement later into the Congressional Record.

In a 498-page report issued earlier this week, the ethics committee called for Sikes to be reprimanded for:

—Buying 2,500 shares of stock in the First Navy Bank after he used his office to help establish the bank at the Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Station.

—Failing to report in financial statements to the House both the bank stock and 1,000 shares of stock Sikes owned in Fairchild Industries, Inc., a major defense contractor.

A reprimand is the mildest form of punishment the ethics panel could have recommended. At the other end of the scale, it could have recommended that Sikes be expelled from the House.

The committee also said Sikes created "an obvious and significant conflict of interest" by sponsoring a bill in 1961 to clear commercial development of Florida land owned by a company he controlled.

But the panel recommended no punishment for the land deal, saying it happened 15 years ago and that Sikes' constituents continued to re-elect him, even though they knew about the deal to some extent.

Sikes, replying to the charges, said he acted as a congressman to benefit his constituents and not himself.

As for failing to report the stock, he said he didn't know he was required to do so. He said he immediately filed reports on the stock when he found out he was supposed to do so.

Charges possible against brothers

Three Sedalia brothers remained in the city jail at noon Thursday pending the possible filing of burglary charges.

James F. Vinyard, 23, Kenneth W. Vinyard, 22, and Roger D. Vinyard, 20, all of 1100 South Osage, were arrested by police at their home about 1 a.m. Thursday.

The three were reportedly arrested in connection with two recent burglaries in Sedalia. Police reported Thursday that the incidents were still being investigated.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said at noon Thursday that there was not sufficient evidence at that time to file charges against the three. However, the trio was still being held, pending further investigation, he said.

☆ Rally

in federal funds has been secured by the city for this purpose, he said.

Commenting briefly on the concept of federal financing for local projects, Franklin said that while he did not always support such a concept "as long as that is what we have to do, you can be sure I'll be in there trying to get every possible penny I can for Sedalia. If we don't get the money, some other city will. This is the only way we can get back our fair share of tax money under the way it is set up now."

Franklin also noted that, on his own time, he constructed and installed a boom and hoist unit at the Centennial Park Swimming Pool to permit blind and handicapped persons to use the pool. He also made and installed braille street signs for every corner on Ohio Street from Main to Broadway for the use of blind persons, Franklin noted.

Hendricks, who is also chairman of the city Planning and Zoning Commission, said a primary concern of his is the city traffic problem. Hendricks said he favored adopting a 20-year traffic improvements plan that recently was completed for the council by the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission.

Harris to give argument

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William Harris, codefendant with his wife, Emily, on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault, was to give one of the closing arguments in their trial.

Harris and his attorney, Leonard Weinglass, were to follow prosecutor Sam Mayerson today in summations to the seven-woman, five-man jury on the 11 charges involving an alleged shoplifting incident at an Inglewood sporting goods store.

The prosecution gets a second chance to address jurors before they begin deliberations.

Patricia Hearst, already convicted in a San Francisco bank robbery case, also is a codefendant, but she will be tried separately.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler warned Harris on Wednesday that the defense, which did not call any witnesses, would be limited to discussing evidence presented by the prosecution.

"You are only permitted to comment on evidence actually presented," the judge said, adding that his warning was meant to avoid a need to interrupt and correct Harris' arguments.

Harris replied, "If I wanted to go past the evidence, I would not have rested my case."

The Harrises rested Tuesday without offering any evidence.

Brandler said the Harris case was likely to be submitted to jurors Friday.

The jurors, who spent much time outside the courtroom during legal wrangles, heard 28 witnesses in 10 days of testimony. Three weeks were spent in jury selection, and the trial spanned another three weeks.

The need for 11 separate verdicts to cover each count of the indictment appeared likely to lengthen deliberations.

Weinglass said he would tell jurors that the episodes described in testimony "do not add up to the charges in the indictment."

The judge confided to attorneys Wednesday that he felt at least one of the charges — the kidnaping of teen-ager Thomas Dean Matthews — may not have been substantiated. But he refused to dismiss the count, leaving it to the jury's decision.

Matthews testified that he lost all fear of the Harrises and Miss Hearst within one block after they climbed into his van May 16, 1974. He admitted enjoying most of his 17 hours on the run with the three famous fugitives and said he didn't feel like a kidnap victim.

In final legal arguments Wednesday, the defense accused the judge of bias and demanded that he remove himself from the case. Brandler refused. Weinglass accused the judge of being "more prosecutorial than the prosecution."

Ford, Reagan delegates hang on JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ronald Reagan's selection of a liberal running mate has raised the eyebrows of some of his Missouri supporters, but has not forced any defections in either his camp or that of President Ford.

A telephone check of Missouri's 49-member delegation to the Republican National Convention shows Ford supporters sticking to the President and Reaganites hanging onto the former California governor, although a handful voiced displeasure with his vice presidential selection.

The state's uncommitted delegates remain on the fence, although one of them expressed some satisfaction with Reagan's move.

Reagan announced Monday that he had chosen Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his running mate if Reagan captures the presidential nomination in Kansas City three weeks from now.

Former Missouri Congressman Thomas Curtis, a Reagan supporter and chairman of the state delegation, said he talked with the California Republican by telephone after the selection.

"He asked me to be patient and understanding. Well, I'm a patient man and I'm trying to be understanding," Curtis said. "It was a very poor choice. I served with Sen. Schweiker in the House and know he had a different political concept than the one Mr. Reagan espouses."

He said five or six Missouri delegates had called him after

Reagan's announcement "to generally express shock and surprise."

He blamed the selection on Reagan's "public relations advice."

"What's really happened is that public relations firms have sort of taken over in place of political parties. You find people running for office without regard to party situations," Curtis said.

He said he was still supporting Reagan as a presidential candidate.

Missouri will send 29 Reagan delegates to Kansas City next month, along with 16 pledged to Ford and four uncommitted.

Fred Whaley, one of the four uncommitted, said the move "helped him in my view. It took away that arch-conservatism image."

The three other uncommitted delegates reached earlier this week had said the Schweiker selection had not affected their positions.

While some Reagan supporters in Missouri were critical of the choice, the majority said they supported whomever he would choose.

"He could have taken Bella Abzug for all I care," said William Love of St. Louis, referring to the liberal Democratic congressman from New York.

Most Ford supporters called it "a big gamble."

"Reagan has consistently been insisting that he is more conservative than the President, and with this he had demonstrated that he isn't," said Lem T. Jones Jr. of Kansas City.

GM's profits set record

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry's bust-to-boom turnaround sent General Motors' profits in the second quarter soaring to a record $909 million, the highest ever by an industrial corporation for a three-month period.

April-June earnings reported Wednesday by the world's largest auto maker amount to a startling $10 million a day after taxes.

Profits jumped 173 per cent from $333 million in the spring of 1975, when the industry was struggling out of its worst slump in four decades.

GM joins Chrysler Corp. in reporting record profits for the period. Ford Motor Co. also is expected to set a new mark when it releases its financial results today.

GM's earnings top the firm's previous quarterly record of $817 million set in the first quarter of 1973. It also shatters the previous quarterly profit mark for an industrial firm of $862 million set in the last three months of 1974 by oil giant Exxon Corp.

Financial analysts said the most money ever made by a company for a single quarter was $940 million by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in the second quarter of this year. AT&T is classified as a utility.

Analysts attributed GM's record profits to higher unit sales industrywide, an increase in the company's market share, a strong comeback in sales of high-profit large cars, an easing of cost increases combined with effective cost-cutting controls, and a recovery in overseas markets that is paralleling that in the United States.

Despite its record performance, GM's profits fell short of the $935 million to $950 million forecast by Wall Street analysts.

GM dollar sales in the quarter were a record $12.5 billion, up 35 per cent from $9.3 billion a year ago. But unit vehicle sales of 2.37 million were below the record 2.39 million recorded in 1973.

For the first half of the year, GM earned $1.71 billion on sales of $23.9 billion, both records. The firm had profits of $392 million on sales of $16.9 billion in the first six months of 1975.

Chrysler, which lost $260 million in 1975, reported second-quarter profits of $155.1 million, highest in the firm's history. Analysts say Ford made about $400 million in the quarter.

The resurgence in an industry known for its volatile ups and downs completes a cycle begun in late 1973, when the Mideast oil embargo interrupted a banner year, plummeting sales and profits.

GM's strong showing received mixed reviews Wednesday. Wall Street analysts praised the firm for improving its profit margin. Company officials warned that earnings must improve further to finance future investments. The United Auto Workers demanded a fair share of GM's wealth in its new contract.

GM and the other makers opened talks with the UAW last week on new pacts covering 680,000 workers.

Lucky Lady is shut down

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — They've closed the Lucky Lady saloon. The front door is draped with red and black crepe paper in memory of owner Mary Joyce — Alaska homesteader, nurse, airline stewardess, licensed pilot and dog musher.

But not all the sourdoughs who frequented the Lucky Lady think Miss Joyce would approve of the closing.

"She would like it one damn bit," said one old-timer around the corner in Juneau's "wino alley."

"She'd want us in there drinkin' a few and rememberin'. Hell, I'll miss her. But I don't feel sad none. She was one hell of a woman and lived a life that any man would envy."

Miss Joyce died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack. Few, if any, of her friends knew her age. Those who did weren't talking. All they would say was that "she was a part of the history of Alaska."

"Mary always lied about her age and I don't think I should tell now," said Mary Anne Greiner, a distant relative.

But there were no lies in the stories Miss Joyce reveled in telling about her past. There are still too many people in this historic gold-mining town who were there and remember the old days.

They remember her working as a stewardess for Northwest Airlines on some of the first regularly scheduled flights from Seattle to Alaska in the late 1930s.

They remember her as one of the first licensed women seaplane pilots in Alaska.

They remember her, all alone except for a Guernsey milk cow with a taste for salmon, staking out a homestead in the wilderness up the rugged Taku River.

And most of all, they remember the solo 1,000-mile dog sled trip she took in the winter of 1935 from Juneau to Fairbanks to enter a Miss Alaska beauty contest. She didn't win.

It was a rough trip for the slim, dark-haired woman. She covered 20 miles a day in subzero temperatures, running most of the way behind her sled and living off rolled oats and bear fat.

It took her two months to reach Fairbanks, but she made it. And when somebody asked her why, she said, "I just wanted to see if I could do it."

Use of National Guard challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Government Employees challenges the legality of the Kansas National Guard being ordered to training duty during the week of the Republican National Convention.

The GOP convention opens Aug. 16 in Kansas City, Mo., across the Missouri River from Kansas City, Kan.

The association said in a letter to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld that it has been brought to its attention that "Republican Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas has directed that three battalions of the state National Guard be ordered to training duty during the week of Aug. 16 rather than their normal weekend drill periods."

The letter to Rumsfeld, released by the association Wednesday, said: "The official reason for this assignment, as declared by the Kansas Adjutant General, Maj.

Gen. Edward R. Fry (a Republican appointee), is to ensure rapid response to any 'tactical situation' which may arise during the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, Missouri."

The association challenges both the legality and the propriety of the governor's action, said the letter, signed by Alan J. Whitney, executive vice president. It said the Guardsmen, while so assigned, will be on the federal payroll.

"NAGE believes it is incumbent upon you, as Secretary of Defense, to take immediate steps to prohibit the use of National Guard members on a patronage basis of this kind," the association said in its letter.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman for the National Guard Bureau said it is usual for the Guard to have two weeks of training in the summer and within the authority of the state adjutant general to reschedule the time period.

If there is a disturbance and the Guard is called by the governor, it would be paid by the state, the spokesman said.

At Topeka, Fry said the battalions involved are units located in the Coffeyville, Ottawa and Wichita areas.

He said that each battalion has been scheduled to take its normal August inactive duty training for two days each during the week starting Aug. 16 instead of during weekend periods normally employed.

He said the National Guard had been asked to do this by Bennett to provide a backup force in case the need arose.

He said each unit, during the two days it is assembled, will be training at its local training area, and that if the need arose, the men could be lifted by helicopter to the scene of trouble.

"In the event they are summoned, they would revert to state emergency duty and no federal pay would be involved," Fry said.

He said one of the battalions is a field artillery battalion, another is an engineer unit and the other is a supply and service battalion.

"They were chosen primarily for not having annual summer training duty at that time," Fry said.

At wit's end

Abused phrase

By ERMA BOMBECK

A letter from a reader the other day did a pretty good job on me. She wanted to know if I got paid for this drivel. Said she wouldn't blame my children and my husband if they left home and never came back. Felt sorry for me because I was obviously godless and would some day be left alone to repent for all my sins. Apologized for having to tell me all this, but everyone else was thinking it. She ended with a gummied yellow label above her signature with a half smile that implored, "HAVE A GOOD DAY."

The good Lord knows I tried, but after that I didn't get too far with it. Maybe I'm suspicious, but I felt she wasn't sincere in her greeting. Frankly, "Have a good day" is beginning to get on my nerves anyway.

Don't get me wrong. It's not the sentiment that bothers me, it's the mechanical, wooden way in which people say it when they don't really mean it. Funeral directors say it. IRS men say it. Traffic policemen say it. Auto mechanics say it. Dentists say it. Clearly, it has become one of the most abused phrases in the English language.

Take the words "thank you." Thank you used to carry a lot of clout. It meant something. Nowadays, people automatically say "thank you" without a thought. They say thank you for the time of day — when it's a recording.

They say thank you when the washer repairman gives them a bill for $43.25 for taking a pair of training pants out of the hose. They say thank you when a soft drink machine spits out a bottle.

I have often wondered how my favorite character, Elwood P. Dowd, the beautiful, uncomplicated, fuzzy man from "Harvey," would have responded to "Have a good day."

He would probably have said, "Compared to what?"

Nervously, his greeter would respond, "Compared to a bad one."

Elwood would then have pinned him down with, "Is there another choice or is that it?"

"Uh... just the two... good or bad."

"Then I'd be an idiot to choose the bad one, right? So, why do I need reminding?"

Good wishes are too important to become clichés — and sentiments too special to come pre-assembled. Besides, they make people skeptical.

The other day my husband pulled up to a car with a bumper sticker that invited, "HONK IF YOU LOVE JESUS."

He laid on his horn and two minutes later, a man appeared at his window and threatened to rearrange his nose.

That's the trouble when you don't write your own material. A lot can be lost in the translation.

Dropping McCarthy paves way for battle

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An attorney general's opinion saying marverick presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy should not be included on the Missouri general election ballot and agreement by the secretary of state to follow that advice has set the stage for a legal battle over state election laws.

"The law is unclear for independent candidates," said Marlene Barrett, McCarthy's Missouri coordinator and running mate, after the opinion was issued Tuesday.

"Perhaps our suit will help clarify the law and allow former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy his rightful place on the Missouri ballot in November," she said.

McCarthy supporters have been circulating petitions for several months seeking to qualify his name as an independent candidate, unassociated with any organized party, on the Nov. 2 ballot. They plan to submit those petitions Saturday.

But Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick said in view of the attorney general's opinion, his office would probably not accept them.

"I don't see how we can," Kirkpatrick said. "We asked the attorney general for his opinion and it's incumbent now on us to rely on his opinion."

Mrs. Barrett said a suit would probably be filed early next week.

Atty. Gen. John Danforth said in his opinion, which carries no legal or judicial weight, that state law requires petitions for independent candidate nominations to have been submitted no later than April 27.

The deadline Saturday, Danforth said, applies only for petitions seeking establishment of ballot status for candidates of new political parties, the concept McCarthy and his supporters are opposing.

"McCarthy left the political parties because of the party politics involved and he felt he could avoid that by running as an independent," said spokesman Gary DeCarolis. McCarthy, former Democratic senator from Minnesota, left the party following his unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination at the riot-marred 1968 Chicago convention.

But Danforth said that in speaking with McCarthy supporters Tuesday he advised them that his office would cooperate completely in any lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the election provisions.

"We are aware that an argument can be made that requiring independent candidates to file by the last Tuesday of April preceding the primary election is unconstitutional," the opinion said. "However, we are without authority to determine whether the statutes we have relied on in reaching our conclusion are constitutional."

Danforth said the role of his office is "to defend the statutes. I've got to call them the way I see them. The role of the attorney general is to interpret the statutes the way he finds them."

McCarthy's name has already been placed on general election ballots in 13 states, DeCarolis said, and court battles are under way in about 15 others. In two states, filing deadlines far in advance of the election have been thrown out.

In only four presidential elections this century have the Democratic and Republican nominees been the only presidential candidates on Missouri's ballot. Those elections were in 1956, 1960, 1964 and 1972.

GSA office sustains big fire losses

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Fire caused an estimated $600,000 damage to the General Services Administration regional headquarters on the southeast side of the city Wednesday night.

The fire was discovered around 8:30 p.m. and 11 fire companies joined in battling the blaze at one time. The building is a sprawling two-story structure, a combination brick, frame, metal.

There were no injuries. Firemen were on the scene until shortly after 3 a.m. today.

Fire officials estimated damage to the building at $400,000 and about $200,000 to contents.

GSA serves a four-state area and about 1,200 persons are employed by the government agency.

H. D. Harvell, regional administrator, said today that all employees should report to work at their normal time. However, he urged them to wear casual clothes to help begin the cleanup operation.

The cause of the fire was under investigation.

San Francisco cable cars were first introduced in 1873.

Sharp hike in property taxes predicted

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sharp County residents, along with people in four other counties, may be faced with skyrocketing property tax increases because those counties have the lowest tax assessments in the state.

The state Assessment Coordination Division said Sharp and four other counties in the state fall short of charging a legal minimum 18 per cent interest level.

The new director of the division, Marvin Russell, said he is going to enforce the property tax laws on the books for the first time in state history.

Russell said the assessments throughout the state will be charged as legally required, which means a statewide reassessment will be needed to bring counties at least up to the legal 18 per cent level.

The other four counties now known to be below the 18 per cent rate are Logan, Cleveland, Searcy and Clay counties.

Russell said a county's assessment is based on a sample taken of 3 per cent of that area's residents.

'Whole area is going in a Socialist direction'Guyana, Jamaica may soon be as Marxist as Castro's Cuba

EDITOR'S NOTE—The long shadow of Communist Cuba is spreading over the Caribbean Sea area, once considered a preserve of the United States. Following is the final of four articles on the left-wing trend in the area.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP)—Behind its meandering sea walls, Guyana is molding a militant Marxist state.

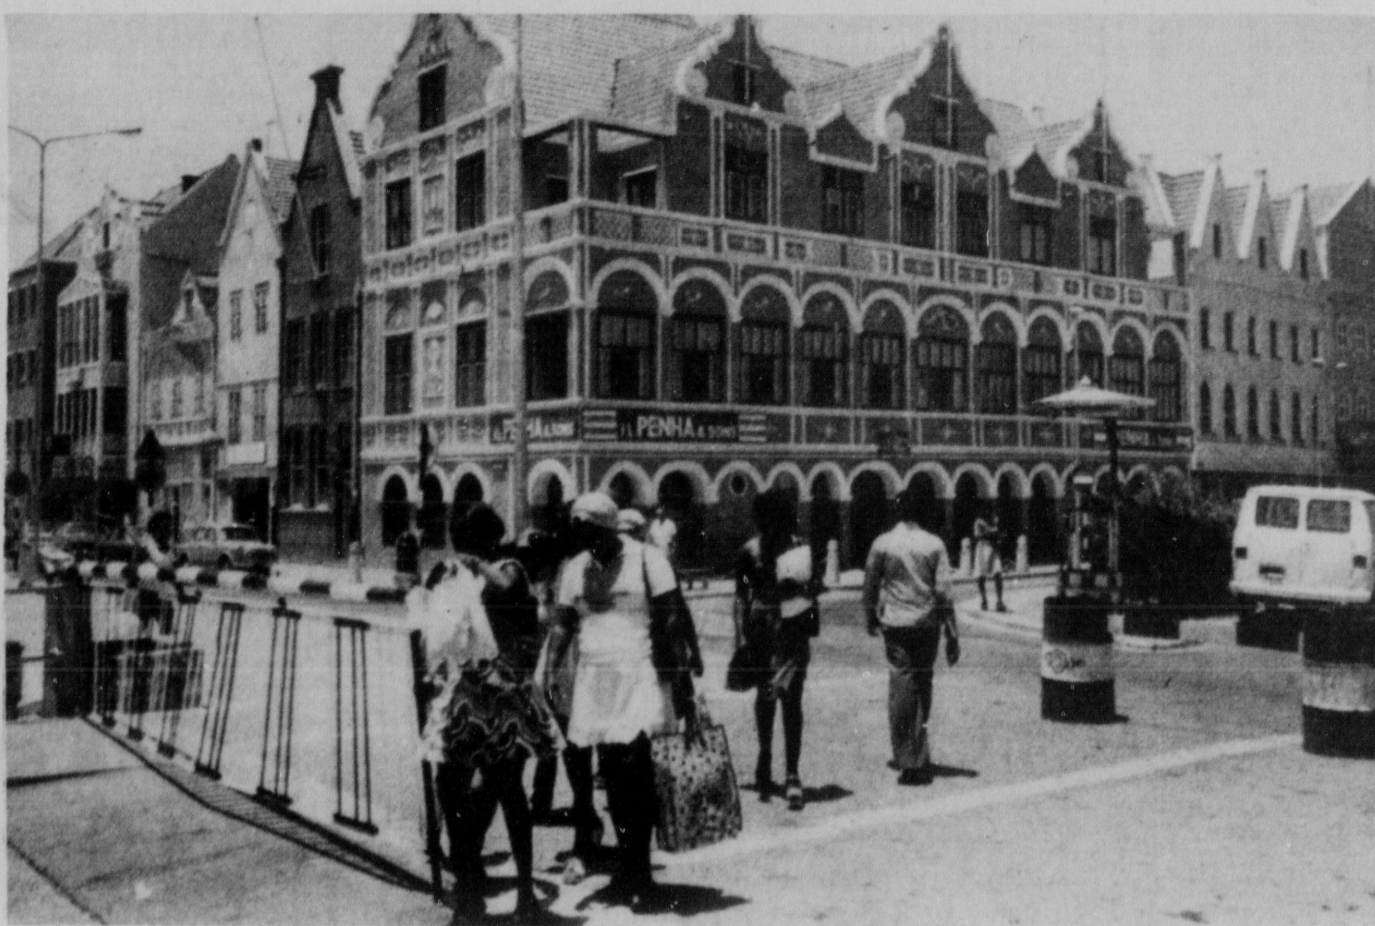

It is demonstrating to leaders of established and emerging nations in the Caribbean Sea area that Marxism can be introduced systematically and relatively peacefully.

Guyana is regarded by some observers here as a leader in what they regard as a rapid swing to the political left by Caribbean nations; a trend combined with rising anti-Americanism, increasing influence of Fidel Castro's Cuba, and experimentation with such economic policies as nationalization of foreign businesses.

Guyana is especially soaking up the Castro ideology. Traffic is brisk between this former British colony on the northeastern shoulder of South America, and Cuba 1,500 miles north across the blue Caribbean.

Officials, technicians and some military men fly back and forth between Havana and Georgetown. Observers in the Caribbean area see Guyana shaping up as a mini-Cuba in so far as social programs, mass organizations and its managed economy are concerned.

But Guyana has made moderate progress without the repressive practices that accompanied Castro's takeover, and this has aroused the interest of the Caribbean's new leaders, many of whom were inspired by the milder British form of socialism.

Scheduled for independence

Most of these leaders are still shy about openly approaching Castro for answers to their economic problems but many of them are travelling to see what they can learn there.

Across this Marxist "bridge," leaders from island-states such as Dominica, St.

Vincent and others take home ideas for nationalizing foreign business, introducing compulsory national service programs, and establishing popular militia bands, all part of a Marxist ideological package.

And with this package come some pointers on how quietly to introduce into the Caribbean a form of government that is historically unacceptable to the United States in such a sensitive area of American interest.

The prime minister of Guyana, Forbes Burnham, is himself a classic example. A decade ago, the United States helped bring the seemingly moderate Burnham to power to prevent Guyana's descent into communism.

The East Indian leader Cheddi Jagan was dumped from power on the eve of Guyana's independence after riots swept across the capital of Georgetown.

Burnham moved in, but Guyana eventually became a Marxist state anyway, following the black leader's belated announcement over a year later that he was a "Socialist" at heart.

Area experts see similar phenomena developing elsewhere in the Caribbean.

They point particularly to the third largest Caribbean island, Jamaica, long an influential example of democratic rule in the region, and an American business and tourist mecca.

A major struggle is taking place in Jamaica over what is felt to be a sharp leftward twist of the government, and the opposition leader, Edward Seaga, has charged that Jamaica "is just two or three steps behind Guyana."

Some critics believe Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley is working closely with Guyana in several areas, one of these control of the aluminum ore, bauxite, an important mineral resource common to both countries.

Guyana nationalized the bauxite operations of both the Reynolds Metal Co. and the Alcan Aluminum Ltd. of Canada in the early 1970s, and has since increased production under state ownership.

According to a former Jamaican minister of mining and natural resources, Allan Isaacs, Manley promised his People's National party leaders prior to his election in 1972 that he would leave the American-owned bauxite industry there alone, "and would never expropriate or seek to acquire any bauxite businesses."

Isaacs told The Associated Press that when Manley took over "I found out he had no such intention. He had clearly joined in a compact with Burnham to nationalize bauxite, if not immediately then by successive bites."

Area experts see parallels in both countries in their relations with Havana. Guyana has long been a Castro friend, and under Jagan was the only Caribbean country to defy the American blockade of Cuba in the early 1960s, exporting 5,000 tons of rice.

SHIELD OF SHELTER

It was not until a decade later that Guyana established official ties with Cuba, but Burnham then moved quickly.

Burnham established a political relationship with the Cuban Communist party in addition to normal diplomatic and trade ties. The Guyana prime minister himself visited Cuba last year, and his party regularly interchanges missions with the Cuban Communists, and they attend each other's functions.

Critics of Jamaica's Manley assert he has taken the same course.

"He has gone entirely overboard on Cuba, not in diplomacy or trade but in establishing a political relationship with Cuba itself," declared opposition leader Edward Seaga in an interview with The Associated Press in the Jamaican capital of Kingston.

Guyana seems willing to pass along its Marxist secrets of success to neighboring countries. Prime Minister Burnham told The Associated Press, "I would not impose Guyanese ideology or ideas on my brother Caribbean leaders, but such as I can see it, the whole area is going in a Socialist direction."

The hand of Cuba is not far away.

Turkey says heroin supply has dried up

By EMEL ANIL
Associated Press Writer

AFYON, Turkey (AP)—Turkish officials believe they have cut off the Turkish heroin supply to the underworld through a two-year-old program controlling the cultivation of poppies.

United Nations drug control officials here are inclined to agree, saying the program "definitely works" and that they intend to continue U.N. financial support for it.

The poppy, source of such drugs as heroin and morphine, has been grown on the arid central Anatolian steppes for 2,000 years. This summer it is once again ripe for harvest in Afyon province and six other provinces where cultivation is permitted under license.

Poppy cultivation was banned in Turkey in 1972 by an interim military government, under strong American pressure. At the time, the United States claimed that 80 per cent of the heroin reaching American addicts originated in Turkish poppy fields, reaching America through the "French Connection" via Marseilles.

With the return to power of an elected government, Turkey resumed poppy cultivation in 1974. Before doing so, however, Turkish officials went to the U.N. agencies involved in prevention of drug abuse, asking for advice and funds to finance an effective control system to prevent diversion of opium poppy production into smugglers' hands.

U.N. experts counseled that Turkey adopt the "straw process" method of harvesting, which forbids the farmer to cut the poppy pods for the extraction of the opium gum inside. Heroin is processed from the opium gum; therefore no gum, no heroin, Turkey agreed to the suggestion.

"This was a courageous decision, even a gamble," says Prof. Paul Reuter, head of the U.N. International Narcotics Control Board. "The system had never been tried before outside of the Communist Bloc, where it is used in Poland and the Soviet Union."

"It was also a risky decision because the system had never been applied on such a large scale in the past," adds his colleague, Gilbertus de Beus of the U.N. Fund for Drug Abuse Control.

The two U.N. officials recently visited Turkish poppy fields and storage facilities here and talked to farmers and officials in charge of the control program.

"Our conclusion is that the system definitely works. We therefore feel fully justified to continue our support," says de Beus, who holds the purse strings on U.N. financial support.

Since 1974, the U.N. fund has provided about $4 million in aid for the purchase of 104 vehicles to patrol the poppy fields, telecommunications equipment and storage facilities.

For the coming year, the fund has pledged $2.5 million to be used primarily to buy two reconnaissance planes. One of the planes is to be equipped with a special camera to photograph the fields. The resultant pictures are to be compared with a map of officially licensed fields for detection of illicit plantings.

About 4,000 military and civilian police are involved in canvassing the poppy fields after their bloom in spring to the end of harvest in August, officials say.

Fund drive chairman is named

Mrs. H.A. Delph, 2423 West Main, has been named Pettis County memorial gifts chairman of the Eastern Missouri Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

The appointment was announced by Bernard A. Ross, president of the Eastern Missouri Chapter of the non-profit, voluntary national health association.

Education, patient service and research are part of the foundation's fight against more than 100 forms of rheumatic disease, Ross said, which affects more than 3,400 Pettis Countians.

Donors are asked to make checks payable to The Arthritis Foundation Eastern

NAACP counsel sees desegregation slowing

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Louis Lucas changes the lives of kids and parents across the country.

He's the man the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People depends on as special counsel in desegregation cases.

Right now, Lucas is involved in some 30 cases, contending that the U.S. Justice Department has failed to pursue the 1964 civil rights law and therefore has caused more problems in desegregating schools.

"There has been a sort of deteriorating process in the area of school desegregation in the Justice Department during the last eight years," Lucas says. "There was a head of steam built up in the right direction, but as the years went by not only did the head of steam get reduced, but the train got turned around."

Lucas, a former Justice Department attorney, says that the statutes which were used to intervene to reduce segregation now are implemented to resist desegregation.

"They haven't kept the pressure on school districts to take action," says Lucas, 41. "A lot of districts move voluntarily under the threat of a withdrawal of federal funds. When that pressure comes off, so does the movement by the school board."

The fight by the NAACP has moved north and Lucas finds himself in the ironical position of a white Southerner defending black rights in the Northern courtroom.

He's in in Detroit; Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati; Dayton, Ohio; Cleveland, and Wilmington, Del. In past years, he's argued in Hartford, Conn., San Francisco, and Kalamazoo, Mich.

"There are some people who resent that white people are handling these cases," he said. "They make remarks like 'I could understand if you were black.' But it seems to me that white people created segregation, and white people have a responsibility to do something about it."

Lucas works 16 hours a day, balancing his work for the NAACP with a private practice in Memphis. "Most of the time, I need to slow down, but it's hard to say no," he explains.

His cases seldom end with the judge's final gavel. Of the 30 cases he has worked on, most require some degree of continual attention.

"School cases never get over," Lucas said. "The court maintains continuing jurisdiction and school boards seem to keep trying to build in the old segregated manner."

The North has been a battleground for Lucas since he tried his first Northern case at Benton Harbor, Mich. in 1969. Before that it was always his native South — Richmond, Birmingham and Memphis.

The difference between the two sections is that in the South, Lucas said, violations were quite clear because there were already existing statutes designed for desegregation. In the North, however, each violation must be proven before a remedy can be reached.

"Southerners have been traditionally more aware of the problems of race and a little more honest about them, not as a matter of virtue, but as a matter of necessity," he said. "I also think Southerners were forced to deal with their own prejudices much sooner than people in the North and are much further along to the idea of a multinational society."

"Northern systems say it was all an accident, which is kind of amusing, because some Southern administrators say 'we do this because we wanted to. We did this because the legislature wanted it this way.'"

His largest effort to date has been in the six-year wrangle involving Detroit schools. In 1974 it resulted in a Supreme Court ruling that pupils could be bused across school district lines if all the systems involved had been affected by official policies fostering desegregation.

That decision sent Lucas back to court to determine a new system. Now the struggle is at the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

"In Detroit, we were dealing with one of the largest school systems in the nation," Lucas said. "It was a case many people said couldn't be tried. It was too big, too Northern, and it was something that had never been done before. Maybe we were just too ignorant to think that it was impossible."

Lucas currently is in courtroom stages of five cases in Ohio. Recently, he appeared in Cincinnati appeals court to defend a Dayton plan based on a ratio-balance formula which goes into effect this September.

He has just concluded a case in Columbus with final arguments still to be heard, has another on Youngstown schools docketed for early next year, hopes to topple arguments put forward in a Cincinnati case in which the system of neighborhood schools was upheld, and awaits a judge's decision on whether Cleveland has segregated schools.

"We don't go into an area just to file a lawsuit. There are times when the school district is trying to do the right thing, but look at what has happened in Dayton, or Cincinnati, or Detroit, where some party backed down."

"We had to back up the people who were trying to do the right thing."

a different viewpoint

How important is it to you that, year after year, majority control of Congress is held by lawyers? It doesn't matter? Think a minute! We all belong to working or professional groups. Farmers, teachers, truckdrivers, plumbers, doctors, businessmen, firemen, policemen. . . we join Farm Bureaus, unions, guilds, Chambers of Commerce, trade associations and other groups to achieve common goals. We tend to think along similar lines. A lawyer from Seattle and one from Atlanta instantly have more in common than a carpenter and a teacher who grew up together in your hometown.

Since this is true, why don't we understand that a better balance is important? You don't have to be a lawyer to be a good Congressman. Your common sense knows this. Why do we elect mostly lawyers and then wonder why Congress stays the same?

If this is still not important to you, the choice is easy. Pick any one of the State Senator candidates, Manford, Gant or Skelton. All three are active lawyers. Whoever wins, Congress does not change.

But if you do care, consider a qualified man who isn't part of the crowd.

Americans upset by Canadians' action

A decision by the Canadian government to ban all foreign (that is, U.S.) commercials from Canadian cable television has raised the prospect of a cold war of the airwaves, reports Radio-Electronics magazine.

More than 40 per cent of Canadian households subscribe to cable TV systems, which pick up U.S. programs and pipe them to people too far away to receive them direct. Up to now, American broadcasters have been happy with the situation because they could reflect their large Canadian audience in their advertising rates.

Deletion of U.S. commercials from Canadian cable programs — presumably with the object of encouraging advertisers to use Canadian broadcast stations — could cut sharply into the revenues of U.S. stations. Thus three TV stations in Buffalo have applied to the FCC for an experimental license to erect a low-power directional transmitter that would jam signals going into Canada while not affecting reception south of the border.

At last account, the Canadians were studying international law to see if this kind of etheric pollution is illegal. The hope, however, is that the problem will be resolved amicably, possibly in an arrangement by which U.S. stations can share in the profits they feel they have created for the Canadian cable companies. Republicans tally their liabilities

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Very well. It is Grits and Fritz for the Democrats. Jimmy Carter is again teaching Sunday School, as inconspicuously as if he were hosting a prayer breakfast at the White House. Walter Mondale is photogenically fishing. The Democrats have fielded a strong ticket, and the question is: What is the Republicans' best bet now?

A good case can be made for Gerald Ford. A good case can be made for Ronald Reagan. Over this past weekend, after the Connecticut and Utah results were in, the Associated Press credited Ford with 1,066 delegates, Reagan with 1,020. A shift of only 23 would make them even-steven. The race remains much in doubt.

To be sure, the polls indicate that the Republicans' decision may have no meaning anyhow. "If the election were held tomorrow," Carter would annihilate Reagan and demolish Ford. Such polls amount to no more than light summer reading; they are pleasant fiction, and they keep the poll-takers busy. Pay them no never mind.

It is a truism of politics that elections turn more often on a candidate's liabilities than on his assets. We tend to vote against a Goldwater, rather than for a Johnson; we vote against a McGovern, rather than for a Nixon. Looking at the Republican balance sheets, one sees plenty of liabilities to spread around.

Discounting his age (65) and his former occupations (sports announcer, movie actor), an appraisal of Reagan suggests two areas of political vulnerability. He still has the image of an ogre, and he has yet to project a presidential aura.

The two handicaps are closely related. No "extremist" is going to be elected president, and when Reagan rattles on about $90 billion budget reductions, or the future of TVA, or the hypothetical use of troops in Rhodesia, or the tinhorn tyrant of Panama, he leaves an impression of ill-considered impulse. Prospective presidents, if they mean to be taken seriously, must learn to guard their tongues. An electable candidate's purpose is not to frighten, but to reassure. Listening to Reagan, many voters — quite wrongly, I believe — hear the pitter-patter of hobnailed boots.

Ford has liabilities of a different sort. He is perceived, inescapably, as an extension of the perfidious Richard Nixon, as an inept campaigner, and as an uninspiring leader.

On the first score, let us put aside any hopeful notion that "Watergate" and "the pardon" are dead issues. It was not by deference to an ethnically balanced program, but by shrewd political design, that Peter Rodino and Barbara Jordan occupied prominent positions at the New York convention. No political observer above the age of seven will believe that Mondale's slashing attack last Thursday night had not first been cleared with Jimmy. Neither is it to be believed that Carter's own allusion to "big-shot crooks" was generic and not specific. Ford is stuck with this albatross. He cannot shed it.

The President's ineptitude on the campaign trail remains a cause for disbelie. He has somehow contrived, against every rational prediction, to nullify the advantages of his own incumbency. He keeps bumping his head on his own possibilities. He is perceived as a minor-league Ike.

On the Democratic side, Carter has abundant liabilities also. He is too lovable by half. Before the campaign ends, he is likely to be perceived as the dearest little con man who ever sold a case of political swamp oil. When he brought up the pardon Thursday night, his vaunted credibility very nearly collapsed; this was one subject, said the candidate who would never lie to us, that he would never bring up.

There will be time enough to examine the liabilities of Jimmy Carter. The Republicans' hour of decision is close at hand. Looking only at the negatives, and leaving the positives for another day, I incline toward the view that Reagan is politically a better choice than Ford. He bears no responsibility for Watergate or for the pardon; no one has ever called him a weak campaigner. If the mood of the country is indeed "anti-Washington" or "pro-change," Reagan is the less vulnerable.

In the remaining days before the Republicans meet at Kansas City, both committed and uncommitted delegates will want to rethink the situation. The Democrats' ticket is formidable; it is not necessarily unbeatable. The GOP's task is to field a ticket that Republicans and independents will vote for, but it is equally the party's task to field a ticket they will not instantly vote against.

"Your scalping knife, sir?"

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — In the cause of saving the taxpayers' money, Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., has traveled to faraway countries and has told their respective potentates which companies they should do business with if they want U.S. aid.

He has also told the U.S. officials, who disburse the aid, when to ship certain commodities and how much to ship. Our sources have been present when Passman has called about an allocation, say, of rice to a needy country. "That's not a good idea," he has said.

On other occasions, he has complained about contracts to companies that he doesn't favor. Their bids, he has declared sternly, are "improper."

Government officials have often found it more expedient to accept his suggestions than to risk losing their appropriations. For the 77-year-old Passman is the Lord High Executioner in charge of cutting foreign aid budgets in the House.

His constant interventions with food shipments has aroused the curiosity of the Agriculture Department, State Department and the FBI. Indeed, the FBI is investigating Passman's relationship with the companies that have been getting foreign aid contracts.

The Agriculture Department is also investigating whether the old curmudgeon has tried to manipulate the commodities market by influencing overseas sales.

These are charges that he has denied, with righteous outrage. He has sworn to us, by all that he holds holy, that he intervened solely to save the taxpayers' money and to help all-American companies.

Otto Passman was born at the turn of the century to tenant farmers and was brought up on unseasoned corn bread and clabbered milk. At age 10, he was hired out to a neighboring farmer for $5 a month.

He decided to make his own way in the world after he turned 14. He dropped out of the fourth grade, worked on a cotton-and-rice farm for a while and eventually got a job in a grocery store.

The memory of his grim childhood developed in him a fierce attachment for every dollar he ever earned. He managed to hang on to enough money to invest in one business after another. His Passman Wholesale Equipment Company, a commercial refrigeration firm and Passman Investment Company thrived under his tight fist.

While he treated every dollar with tenderness, he was not unkind of those less blessed. He tithed to the church and became an active Mason. When friends were down on their luck, he was available for a loan and a lecture on economy.

Passman became admired in Monroe, La., whose burghers elected him to Con-

Merry-go-round

Rep. Passman has hand in aid control

gress in 1946. He made foreign aid his specialty. His knowledge of the intimate details of foreign aid is unparalleled. Or as one of his colleagues once said in exasperation: "(Passman) knows the number of coat hangers they have in Khartoum, but not what the AID program is doing in the Sudan."

He developed a special interest in rice. This might seem natural enough, since his native Louisiana is the nation's leading rice producer. But the company that, usually benefited from Passman's intervention in rice matters was located in New Jersey.

The Connell Rice and Sugar Company of Westfield, N.J., has wound up with export contracts, worth $680 million, during the last seven years. This is roughly half of the $1.3 billion that the Food for Peace Program has exported during this time. Passman has also been partial to the St. John Maritime Company, which has had equally good fortune in getting freight contracts to ship food to needy nations.

In 1973, for example, Passman flew to Saigon for discussions with then-President Thieu. Sources privy to their conversation said Passman had urged Thieu to utilize St. John ships to haul grain to South Vietnam. The Louisiana legislator explained his power over the foreign aid budget, according to our sources.

This made such an impression on Thieu that he later dispatched his Minister of Economy to Louisiana to relay personally to Passman the good news that St. John had been awarded the shipping contracts.

Passman also impressed upon U.S. officials, who had to approve the shipping agent, that St. John was "in the best position" to fill the contract, say our sources.

The congressman confirmed that Grover Connell, the owner of the favored New Jersey company, is a close personal friend of his. But Passman insisted that he had met St. John's owner, Harry J. Smith, only once. "The man has never called me, and I have never called him," said Passman.

Passman assisted St. John, he said, to keep the business in the United States. His other interventions — blocking a rice shipment to Cambodia, arranging three rice deals in South Korea, questioning a contract with East Pakistan, to name a few — have been instigated to save money, he said.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Senate Democratic leaders are quietly preparing to block President Ford's key appointments until next January, hoping Jimmy Carter will then become President and will fill the vacancies with deserving Democrats ... California's charismatic Gov. Jerry Brown has quietly prepared a master list of key Democrats, coast to coast, who have shown an interest in him for President. Hundreds of names, with background details, are being fed into a computer. This catalogued, computerized list will be ready in 1980 in case Jimmy Carter falters and the Democrats start looking for someone to step into his shoes ... Danger seen in No. 7

As a citizen of these United States and of Missouri, I wish to oppose the passage of Amendment No. 7, to be voted on in the primary election Aug. 3.

In my opinion, if passed, (it) would be a step backward and we would again eventually find ourselves in the same position in which our forefathers found themselves many years ago.

Men and women grew weary of being dominated by the Church of England and came to this country seeking religious liberty. Even after establishing churches here, certain church leaders persecuted groups who did not hold to the same religious beliefs they had.

Early religious leaders suffered and died fighting for religious liberty and separation of church and state even here in America in the early years of our country.

If we do not want to go back to domination by the government in our schools and churches, then we should vote against Amendment No. 7, which gives aid to private and religious schools. This would be the beginning of the end of freedom in America as we have known it for the past 200 years.

All children have the right and privilege of attending our public schools. If it is the desire of certain groups to have their private and religious schools, then it is their responsibility to support such schools and not expect to be supported by the public tax money, which I as a taxpayer contribute to, to teach doctrines in which I do not believe. Is that freedom? I say NO!

If this Amendment passes our taxes will be increased and the tax burden is so heavy now that we with limited incomes find it hard to pay.

If you value your freedom and believe in the separation of church and state, vote NO on Amendment No. 7 Aug. 3.

Art Buchwald Delegates getting attention

WASHINGTON—A fellow went in to see the President last week and said he was an uncommitted delegate from Suffolk County, N.Y. The President said he was glad to see him. The fellow said he was glad to see the President, too. The reason was that Suffolk County had a sewer problem and the only one who might be able to solve it was the President of the United States. The President said he was very good at solving sewer problems and if any place got a new sewer next year it would be Suffolk County. The fellow walked out of the President's office and told reporters he was now a committed delegate for President Ford.

Buchwald

As the race for the Republican presidential nomination gets hotter, more and more uncommitted delegates are being asked to visit the White House and spend time with Gerald Ford. The White House has angrily denied the President is bribing anyone to vote for him.

But can we be sure? By early August the visits may go something like this.

"Mr. President, this is Mr. Gladstone, an uncommitted delegate from Minotree, Me."

"How do you do, Mr. Gladstone. Welcome to the White House. Can I make you some scrambled eggs?"

"No thank you. I'm not hungry, Mr. President."

"I understand you're an uncommitted delegate. Can I ask you why you're uncommitted?"

"Because the train don't stop at Minotree anymore."

"What's that you say?"

"The five-o-five used to stop in Minotree on the way to Boston. But they took it off last year."

"No one told me about this! Get me Secretary of Transportation Coleman on the phone ... Mr. Secretary. This is the President. Why wasn't I informed that you took the train service off Minotree, Me., last year? ... I don't care if it was an Amtrak decision. I told you to wake me day or night when you decided on any change in this nation's train schedules. Now I want the five-o-five to Boston to stop at Minotree even if it means rerouting the 'Broadway Limited' from Chicago. This is a matter of national security. Thank you ... Goodbye ... Is there anything else I can help you with?"

"That will be enough, Mr. President. I want you to know I will be proud to vote for you in Kansas City."

"Thank you, Mr. Gladstone. You should have told me about your train problems sooner."

"Mr. President, this is Mr. Ronald Felder of Sawtooth, Mont. He's an uncommitted delegate."

"You're darn tootin' I am. We was promised a ski lift two years ago and danged if we got so much as a piece of rope."

"That's odd. I specifically remember signing a bill for a ski lift for Sawtooth, Morton, what happened to that bill?"

"You didn't sign it, Mr. President. You vetoed it."

"Then I'll unveto it. Morton, find the bill and I'll sign it this afternoon."

"If it's up to me you'll be the President in February."

"Thank you, Mr. Felder. Who's next?"

"Sarah Lockenbocker of Racine, Wis."

"How do you do, Mrs. Lockenbocker. What is your profession?"

"I'm a chambermaid in a Holiday Inn."

"That must be interesting work."

"I hate it."

"What would you like to do?"

"I thought I'd like to be a federal judge."

"Well, I'll speak to Ed Levi, the Attorney General, about that. If you can't be a federal judge, what would be your second preference?"

"I wouldn't turn down being ambassador to the Court of Saint James."

"Now that's easier. Take this note over to Henry Kissinger at the State Department and be sure and tell him I sent you."

"Thanks a lot. I guess this means I have to vote for you in Kansas City."

"Not necessarily. I want you to vote your conscience. But I did hear Ronald Reagan is going to give the post to Frank Sinatra."

"Over my dead body. You just got yourself an uncommitted delegate."

"Thank you, Mrs. Ambassador. Who's next, Morton?"

Steering group pushes Greek feminist cause

By PAUL ANASTASSIADES
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS (AP) — Working out of a one-room ground floor office in downtown Athens, a largely American-led international women's liberation group is developing into a potential steering force for the infant Greek feminist movement.

Called the "Multinational Women's Liberation Group of Athens," it has about 100 activist members who have established organizational links with feminist groups in North and South America, Western Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

It all began with the launching of International Women's Year in January 1975.

"It started with a children's party when a few of the mothers present got a chance to exchange views," says Becky Sakelariou, 31, of Framingham, Mass. "We wanted no leadership figure and followers, but structure and organization eventually became inevitable."

The self-financed body now has a library, publishes a newsletter, offers advice, is divided into "action groups," committees and forums, holds classes and has debated with antifeminists over the U.S. Air Force radio station here.

It describes its main objective as "consciousness raising" for women, and classes so far have included such varied themes as rape, violence, motherhood, abortion, guilt, jealousy and body image.

"Sensitivity towards one another and awareness is our main difference from nonfeminist women," adds Miss Sakelariou. "We have discarded jealousy and petty competitions, awareness of what we must and must not do and say in society. The feeling of freedom is fantastic."

Sandy Vouyoukalou, a sociologist of Perth, Western Australia, stresses that the group's main difference with the Greek feminist organizations is that it is nonpolitical. She charges, however, that a recently established Greek constitutional provision stating equality of men and women is "without content both in law and practice," and says Greek feminist political action is necessary.

She says the group "wants to fit into women's activities here without becoming a nuisance," and disclaims any intention of assuming a leadership role for the Greek feminist movement.

But Lena Doukidou, one of the foremost writers here on Greek feminism, says the international group "is by far the most advanced in its outlook and experience, and will inevitably cause much influence at least."

The group, open to Greek membership as well, has invited Greek feminists for discussions, and has met with woman parliamentarian and former American citizen Virginia Tsouderou, perhaps the foremost advocate of women's rights here.

But the group's most ambitious and exhaustive project has undoubtedly been a study of "schoolbook sexism," the conclusions of which are being passed on to British and American schoolteachers here and to Greek feminists.

Some of the group's members are now writing children's books for Greek schools.

Austrian kids portray U.S.A. with drawings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine-year-old Claudia Schmid sees the United States as a series of multicolored skyscrapers. Christa Ganzara, 14, sees a busload of camera-laden sightseers busily photographing a modern-day Indian village.

Claudia and Christa are both Austrian schoolchildren. Their views of life in America are part of an exhibition of 76 paintings and drawings created by Austrian schoolchildren as a bicentennial gift to the United States.

Titled "How Do I See the U.S.A.?", the exhibition is being shown this summer and fall during a national tour after being officially presented to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington.

Some of the portrayals are slightly offbeat. Katja Unterluggauer, 9, depicts a broadly smiling Statue of Liberty with Orphan Annie eyes, one arm jauntily poised on her hip, while the other holds aloft a torch filled with colorful streamers.

Thirteen-year-old Dieter Wimmer's entry shows Chicago at sunset — with a structure bearing a strange resemblance to the Golden Gate Bridge in the foreground. Horst Schappellwein, 13, chose America's colorful past as his subject. The painting is called "Abandoned Gold Digger's Town."

Big cities in general were a favorite subject for the paintings. They show the city at night, from the air, as a series of car-choked streets, with people-filled buildings. Two of the more unusual entries dealt with New York. One shows the city burning; the other depicts skyscrapers with eyes instead of windows.

Paintings touch on many subjects. Ida Schwinger, 15, called her entry, "Dreamland America." It shows both city and country and a view of Las Vegas with the American flag in the background.

Thirteen-year-old Joseph Moosmueller's "Inhabitant of Industrial Pittsburgh" shows a green-faced woman who looks as if she needs a long vacation in the country.

Cowboys and Indians are another favorite theme — obviously one effect of American television. Indian teepees in front of an endless line of skyscrapers was 11-year-old Thomas Grabmeyer's entry. Gerald Bachlechner, 13, picked another favored bit of Americana. His drawing shows two long and lean cowboys relaxing "In Front of the Saloon."

The exhibit was initiated to reflect Austria's gratitude for American help received since the end of World War II and is being sponsored by SOS-Kinderdorf International, a worldwide childcare organization, with the cooperation of the Austrian federal government.

More than 5,000 paintings were produced by Austrian elementary and high school students. The best 76 were selected by Friedensreich Hundertwasser, a noted Viennese painter, and will be shown in a series of exhibits throughout the year in Washington, Chicago, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and New York.

Dee Snider is crowned fair queen

KNOB NOSTER — Miss Dee Snider, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Snider, Knob Noster, was chosen Miss Knob Noster during a pageant Tuesday at the Knob Noster High School football stadium.

The crowning was the opening event of the 12th annual Knob Noster Street Fair, which will run through Saturday.

Named first runner-up was Miss Annette Matthews, 15, daughter of S. Sgt. and Mrs. Lennon Matthews, Whiteman Air Force Base. Miss Lori Schowengerdt, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schowengerdt, Knob Noster, was chosen second runner-up.

The best talent award was given to Miss Patricia Olivares, 14, who did a hula dance. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan A. Olivares, Knob Noster. Miss Cindy Wood, 15, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Russell Wood, Whiteman AFB, was named Miss Congeniality.

Randy Rahe, of KOKO radio, Warrensburg, was the master of ceremonies. Serving as judges were John Loyd, Charlie Baile and Jerry Tally.

Whiteman picks Wife of Year

KNOB NOSTER — Mrs. Lora Jean Villarreal was recently named Whiteman Air Force Base's Wife of the Year.

The wife of Capt. Larry Villarreal, she was nominated for the award by the Officers' Wives' Club (OWC).

Other wives named in the competition were Mrs. Martha Badger, Mrs. Betty Taylor and Mrs. Edie Blanchard.

Mrs. Villarreal is active in OWC, Cub Scouts and the Red Cross. In 1975, she was nominated as an Outstanding Woman of America. A mother of two, Mrs. Villarreal was a family services volunteer during 1974 and 1975.

During the past school year, Mrs. Villarreal worked as secretary to Director of Special Services at Warrensburg High School. She also taught third grade in Sunday School at the base chapel and was team mother for a Whiteman Little League team last year.

Polly's pointers

Time is money for home labor

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the way supermarkets package ground meat. It is almost impossible to find a one pound package of hamburger meat or ground pork as invariably it will be several ounces over and you have to ring a bell and wait to have a one pound package made up special. This seems to me to be a ruse to get us to buy more meat. — HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I am answering the reader whose plastic curtains were torn in the washer. I have had good luck washing mine in the bathtub. I use warm water and mild soap, let the curtains soak a while and then work them around with my hands. After draining out the soapy water, put in clean warm water and rinse twice. Hang on the shower curtain pole to drip dry and the water drips into the tub. Mine looks like new after washing this way. — MRS. R.L.

DEAR POLLY — We thought we had tried everything to get rid of fleas in our carpet, until we finally bought several boxes of flea powder, sprinkled it generously on all carpeted areas and left the house for a few hours. Later we vacuumed thoroughly. While this was a lot of work, it was cheaper than having an exterminator and really did the job. — ELLEN

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Can anyone tell me how to go about putting prices on handmade items like crocheted shawls and so on that one makes for someone else? — ETHEL

DEAR ETHEL — That is a good question, but hard to answer. When making an item for someone specifically, do come to an agreement on price before the work is started. Often a warm friendship can cool off when the price is quoted afterwards. Some seem to figure one's time is worth little. Look around in shops selling handmade items and at bazaars and see what they charge. One's time is money. Though the charges could not be made according to ALL the hours spent on the job and at a going hourly rate, there certainly should be fair compensation for it. — POLLY

Hard-luck Royals get by California in 15th

ANAHEIM (AP) — The visiting clubhouse at Anaheim Stadium was awash in color. Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog slowly stripped off his Royals blue uniform while turning a slight shade of green with envy as he contemplated possible black days ahead.

His division-leading Royals had just scratched their way to a nerve-wracking, 3-2 win over the last-place Angels in 15 innings Wednesday and the victory was the only relief in sight. Herzog's vaunted hitting attack has disappeared along with more than half of his starting pitchers. And dancing through his mind were the visions of talented young Angels hurlers Paul Hartzell and John Verhoeven.

"I can't believe we're this bad with the bats," said Herzog. "Of course we faced some good pitching. Boy, the Angels have some good young arms. Hartzell is really going to be something when he learns to change speeds and that Verhoeven is awfully tough on righthanders."

While winning two games in Anaheim, Herzog may have lost two pitchers. Paul Splitter is out until September with tendonitis in the index finger of his pitching hand and Doug Bird's fate will be determined tomorrow when he tests his ailing right shoulder on the sidelines in Kansas City.

"We'll just do the best we can," said Whitey. "I hope we can get Hal McRae back in the lineup, at least as the designated hitter Friday. With him out of there, they're pitching around John Mayberry more."

Angels' general manager Harry Dalton eased the pain of defeat with thoughts of Hartzell, 22, and Verhoeven, 23, a pair of righthanders not even on the roster in spring training.

"I'd say Hartzell did quite a job in his fourth major league start against the best hitting club in the league," said Dalton. "A hit batsman set up the first run and a walk, error and ground ball got them their second."

Dalton was even more ecstatic over the work of Verhoeven.

"He wasn't good, he was great. To go five and a third innings in a tie game in extra innings and allow only one hit and strike out five is really something. He went after Mayberry like he wasn't there."

Their power reduced by the effective young Angels, the Royals resorted to excellent execution to generate offense. Their second and third runs both came without benefit of a hit.

The game-winner was set up by Jerry Remy's two-base throwing error to open the 15th. Tom Poquette moved to third base on Mayberry's ground ball and scored as Dave Nelson laid down a bases-loaded suicide squeeze bunt.

Kansas City's second run came in the seventh inning. Fred Patek walked, went to second on Hartzell's errant pick-off attempt and to third on Frank White's sacrifice before scoring as Al Cowens grounded out.

California needed two singles and a stolen base for its first run and doubles by Tommy Davis and Ron Jackson to force the tie in the seventh.

Blue Moon, Barrios no-hit Oakland A's

OAKLAND (AP) — "It was the most tainted no-hitter I've ever seen," said Oakland A's Manager Chuck Tanner. "Or maybe I should call it the funniest."

But to the Chicago White Sox John "Blue Moon" Odom, who pitched five hitless though walk-filled innings to get credit for the 2-1, no-hit victory, "It was one of the happiest times of my life."

Odom spent 11 seasons with the A's, who gave up on him last year. He was in the minor leagues a month ago before the White Sox gave him a fresh start.

Francisco Barrios, a rookie relief pitcher, took over for Odom in the sixth. The 31-year-old veteran had issued his ninth walk, to Billy Williams leading off, and thrown one ball to Sal Bando before Sox Manager Paul Richards sent coach Jim Busby to the mound to get Odom.

The no-hitter by the two right-handers, who totaled 11 walks, was the American League's first this year and the fourth combination no-hitter in major league baseball history. It was the first time two pitchers combined to win a nine-inning, no-hit game, not counting a 1917 American League game in which Boston's Babe Ruth was ejected after walking one batter and Ernie Shore went to the mound to get 27 straight outs.

Barrios, 23, from Hermosillo, Mexico, was throwing in the bullpen in the top of the sixth when Jim Spencer broke a 1-1 tie with a home run off A's reliever Paul Lindblad.

Olympics on television

MONTREAL (AP) — Three Americans will compete against the strong Cuban runner Alberto Juantorena for a gold medal today in the men's 400-meter run at the Summer Olympics. ABC-TV continues its coverage.

Four other track and field events will be decided — men's long jump, and women's 400-meter dash, 100-meter hurdles and discus.

The network will televise 3½ hours of the Games, from 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., EDT, with a 15-minute wrapup at 11:30 p.m. Exact events to be shown won't be known until shortly before air time because much of the coverage is live.

Juantorena, who won gold in the 800 meters, was victorious Wednesday in one semifinal heat.

Fred Newhouse, a 27-year-old from Baton Rouge, La., won the other semifinal. The only other Americans in the race will be Herman Frazier of Philadelphia and Maxie Parks of Los Angeles. All three have predicted they would shut out the Cuban.

Among the competitors in the men's long jump are defending Olympic champion Randy Williams from Oakland, Calif., and bronze medalist Arnie Robinson from San Diego. A third American jumper is Larry Myricks of Mississippi College in Jackson.

No American women made the finals in the discus or 100 hurdles. Three are alive in the 400-meter run — Sheila Ingram of Washington, D.C., Rosalyn Bryant of Chicago, and Debra Sapenter of Prairie View, Tex.

Injuries hobbling Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Wiggin is wrestling with an old, familiar problem at the sweltering Kansas City Chiefs training camp.

"We seem to be riddled with injuries," said the crew-cut head coach.

"But it seems to be the same everywhere. I talked with Monte (Clark) at San Francisco and they don't have an offensive tackle."

Last year, his first as head coach of the Chiefs, Wiggin watched a flood of injuries such as he had never known swamp his team.

Wednesday, as the staff prepared for Monday night's preseason opener with Houston, wide receiver Barry Pearson returned to practice but two others, Larry Brunson and Ike McBee were still mending. Muscle pulls have plagued the receiving corps while running backs MacArthur Lane and Ed Podolak were held out of practice with leg muscle injuries.

Also on the worry list are defensive tackle Bob Maddox and guard Roger Bernhart, who are not responding well from last season's knee surgery.

In addition, veteran guard Ed Budde is out with knee problems and will be spelled by Rod Walters, the No. 1 draft choice from Iowa.

"And all our punt return people are hobbling with some sort of injury," he said.

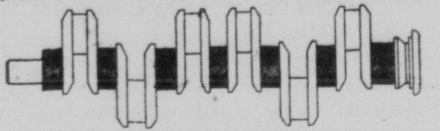

But injuries aside, Wiggin has noticed a positive attitude around camp which pleases and encourages him.

U.S. trackmen, boxers hope to restore prestige

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States now is almost hopelessly out of the medals race in the XXI Olympic Games and, in fact, doesn't even have a very good shot at second place.

The Americans, who once dominated these quadriennial celebrations of sports, suffered a gold medal shutout again Wednesday, their third in five days. They have gained only one gold medal since Sunday night and, in that period, have fallen far back of Russia and East Germany.

Russia, which picked up four golds Wednesday, leads with a gold-silver-bronze count of 33-31-23. East Germany has 30-19-18. The United States is a poor third at 22-26-19.

The trend, however, could be reversed. It's doubtful that America's inspired boxers and somewhat maligned track and field forces can muster enough strength in the closing days of the Games to overtake either of the Communist powers — but they can make it respectable. They could still make it interesting.

The key could come in today's activity. Maxie Parks, Los Angeles; Fred Newhouse, Baton Rouge, La.; and Herman Frazier, Philadelphia, have promised a 1-2-3 American finish and a shutout of Cuba's Alberto Juantoreno in the men's 400 meters.

"We're ready to run him right out of a medal," said Newhouse.

And tonight, big John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., will take on Cuba's favored Teofilo Stevenson in a heavyweight boxing semifinal, the feature of the television coverage.

Tate is one of seven Americans who has reached the boxing semifinals. All of them are assured of at least a bronze medal. By comparison, the United States won only three boxing medals in the 1972 Games at Munich.

"We're doing it for Davey," is the boxers' rallying cry. Featherweight Davey Armstrong, Puyallup, Wash., was eliminated in the quarterfinals. His teammates say, quite frankly, he was robbed.

Tate, who suffered an eye cut, put together a strong third round for a 3-2 quarter-final decision over West Germany's Peter Hussing, clearing the way for the important bout with the formidable Stevenson, the defending Olympic champion.

Other Americans in tonight's semis are the fighting Spinks brothers, lightweight Mike and light-heavyweight Leon; light-welter Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md.; lightweight Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y.; bantamweight Charles Mooney, an Army sergeant stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and flyweight Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash.

The Spinks, like Tate, won quarter-finals Wednesday.

The others had advanced earlier. Mike Spinks, from St. Louis, took a 5-0 decision over Ryszard Pasiewicz of Poland.

Leon, a Marine corporal at Camp Lejeune, N.C., had more trouble with the referee than he did Ottomar Sachse of East Germany. Leon scored one knockdown and an easy decision but was warned once for talking to the referee. And when he showed up for the judges' decision wearing a white cap with a red tassel, the referee yanked it off and threw it in a corner.

Americans also have the lead in both men's and women's archery, and, thanks to an excellent ride by Hilda Gurney of Woodland Hills, Calif., moved into second place behind the West Germans in the equestrian dressage team competition.

The United States, which has won only the basketball gold in the past three days, was limited to two medals Wednesday, a bronze by four-time Olympian Willie Davenport, Baton Rouge, La., in the men's 110-meter hurdles, and a silver by Hawaiians David McFaul and Mike Rothwell in the Tornado class yachts, behind the British boat which already had clinched the gold.

Russia's four golds came in men's and women's team handball, women's team foil fencing and in the men's hammer throw, where Yuri Syedekh set a Games record with a throw of 254 feet, 4 inches and led a Soviet sweep of the medals. Aleksev Spiridonov was second and Anatoly Beonjerchuk was third.

The East German women also swept the women's 200, with lightly-regarded Baerbel Eckert winning the gold in 22.37, setting an Olympic record and beating 100-meter gold medalist Annegret Richter and defending champion Renate Stecher.

Anders Garderud of Sweden set a world record of 8:08.02 in the steeplechase and East Germany's Rosemarie Ackermann won the women's high jump with an Olympic record 6-4.

Guy Drut, a French national hero and generally considered his nation's best athlete, won the hurdles in 13.30, followed by Alejandro Casanas of Cuba and the 33-year-old Davenport. It was the first time since the 1928 Games the United States had failed to win a gold medal in that event.

The United States now has won two golds, three silvers and six bronzes in five days of track and field competition.

"Some people say we're not doing too well," said U.S. track coach Dr. LeRoy Walker. "I think we're doing fine. We'll have finalists in all but one or two of the last events."

But it would take more than that to offset the Russians' lead of 11 in gold medals and their 87-67 lead in total medals. East Germany also has 67 over-all.

Catfish relieve summer doldrums

Anglers who have managed to pull themselves out of air-conditioned surroundings the past couple of weeks have been catching catfish at the Lake of the Ozarks. White bass are still being caught in plentiful numbers in the Gravois Mills area. However, the rest of the fishing picture in the Central Missouri area is not worth looking at.

The summer doldrums still has its grip on most other species, but resort operators are optimistic. The recent sightings of small shad minnows have spread hopes that the small baitfish will soon draw larger game species out of hiding.

TURKEY — COLE CAMP CREEKS: Catfish are biting well in Turkey Creek, with mostly white cats and some channels being taken in the 3-to 5-pound class. Most baits are working well, whether on rod and reel or trotlines.

A 30-pound white cat was caught on a hot-dog-baited trotline Wednesday morning in Cole Camp Creek. Some white bass are also being taken in the upper end of the creek. However, fishing is poor for other species in both areas.

ZORA — IVY BEND: Catfish are rated good on shad and leech-baited trotlines. All other species poor.

GRAVOIS MILLS: One of the strangest success stories in recent years is occurring here. Large stringers of white bass in the 1/2 to 3-pound size are still being taken at night on small black jigs worked around gravel bars and points. The white bass run here has already lasted over a month and is still showing no sign of letting up.

Catfish are also still rated good on rod and reel, with most anglers using worms or shrimp. Some crappie are also being caught on minnows in deep-water beds.

SUNRISE BEACH: Catfish rated good here also. White and channel cats are being taken on just about any bait imaginable. A few white bass are being taken at night on noisy topwater lures and crappie are rated fair.

POMME DE TERRE: All species poor. Some largemouth bass are being taken on plastic worms. Also being taken in small quantities are good-sized crappies caught on minnows on the outer sides of moss beds or in the deep water in brush-choked coves.

There's an armadillo on the loose in Pettis County.

The Conservation Department reports that a plated ploder has disappeared from its exhibit building on the State Fairgrounds.

The animal first turned up on a motel parking lot in Jefferson City. It's theorized that it had been armadillo-napped from a state south of Missouri.

Conservation Department employees transported the animal to Sedalia and placed it in a cage at the exhibit building. There it had the bad habit of climbing to the top of the cage and falling to the floor.

So the exhibits helpers put the animal in the deer pen, from which it escaped.

Record striper

A new state record striped bass was caught on the Big Niangua arm of the lake of the Ozarks July 2 by Edmund Kolaks of Camden. The 25-pound, one-ounce ocean import was taken on a shad.

No one knows how large striped bass will become in Missouri. Arkansas has a 40-pound record, Kansas' top fish is 33 pounds, 12 ounces and the saltwater national record is 72 pounds.

SFCC basketball schedule

The State Fair Community College basketball schedule has been completed for the 1976-77 season. The defending Missouri junior college champions will play 30 games, including five tournaments. There are 12 home contests.

The Roadrunners open the season Nov. 12 in the Forest Park Classic in St. Louis. They then play in the Allen County Classic at Iola, Kan., Nov. 19-20, before returning for their home opener Nov. 26 in the State Fair Classic.

New teams on the Roadrunners' schedule this year are Belleville, Ill.; Cloud County, Kan.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Allen County, Kan.; and Kansas City, Kan., all in different classics. Non-conference foes are Crowder College, East Central Junior College and Moberly Junior College. SFCC again will play 14 conference games.

The schedule:

Nov. 12-13, Forest Park Classic, St. Louis.

Nov. 19-20, Allen County Classic, Iola, Kan.

Nov. 26-27, State Fair Classic, home.

Dec. 3-4, Blue Devil Classic, Kansas City, Kan.

Cards lose to rain, Fryman

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A multitude of blessings descended upon Woodie Fryman Tuesday night and the most important may have been rain.

The 36-year-old Fryman, a fitful form while struggling for control, somehow held off the St. Louis Cardinals through 5 2-3 innings of a scoreless game.

Then, just when it appeared the Montreal Expos pitcher might capitulate, a thunder-shower provided the respite he needed to emerge ultimately with a 3-0 win.

"I don't think I've been that wild all year," a still-uniformed Fryman, 9-8, sighed long after Dale Murray's relief and two insurance Expos runs in the ninth inning nailed down his first triumph since June 27.

"I was all over the place," said Fryman, who walked five and surrendered eight hits but stranded 11 St. Louis baserunners in six innings.

"I made some decent pitches when they had men on base and Larry Parrish made a good stop," he recounted, "but other than that I was as wild as a young goat."

Key pitches, as seen by Fryman, included fast balls which retired Vic Harris and Bee-Bee Richard after Joe Ferguson singled and Hector Cruz doubled to start the Cards' second.

But equally important was a delivery Cruz smacked hard within Parrish's range at third base for a force play after St. Louis filled the bases the next inning.

Fryman again extinguished a threat by striking out Mike Anderson following two walks, an aborted Cards theft attempt and two singles in the fourth.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The student went right up with dummy's ace of diamonds. Then he drew trumps with two leads and played a second diamond to dummy's queen and East's king. The nine of diamonds came back. Now the student ruffed a club before throwing East in with the last diamond. East got out with a club and the game boat had sailed away. The student had to lose two heart tricks and his contract. "Tough luck, wasn't it?"

asked the student. "Yes, but good play would have saved you. At trick two you should have ruffed a club, then a spade lead to dummy, ruff of another club, a second spade lead to ruff the last club and then you could have gone after the diamonds. "East would collect his two diamond tricks, but then he would be stuck. If he led a club, South would get a ruff and a heart sluff to hold his heart losers to one. If he led the king of hearts, South would let it hold and he would either have to give that ruff and sluff or lead a second heart to dummy's ace, jack." So as to forestall letters, the hand can also be made against a heart opening lead.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine reader wants to know what the chance is that if you hold eight trumps, the opponents five trumps will split 3-2. The answer to that one is that they split 3-2 about 68 per cent or just over two thirds of the time.

Pastor rebuffs issue of style

Dear Ann Landers: I am a young minister who would like to comment on the bereaved widow who asked her pastor not to visit any more because he stopped wearing his clerical collar and began to show up in a sport shirt. She failed, however, to tell him the reason. (Actually, she was afraid of what the neighbors might think.)

The widow was wrong for not leveling with the pastor and you were wrong in condoning her actions. By not telling him the reason, she deprived him of an opportunity to express his point of view.

So often, people expect ministers to be mind readers. That widow opted to chicken out rather than give him a chance to rectify the situation. She didn't come right out and verbalize her feelings because she was ashamed of her silliness over the issue of style.

Secondly, she (and you) must be plenty hung-up on externals. If the man is really a good pastor, he can do his work in swimming trunks. If he's not, all the trappings in the world won't help.

I understand the lofty pedestals on which many ministers are placed by members of their flocks, and I agree on the importance of maintaining dignity and striking a balance between intimacy and distance. BUT, I suspect, something else was going on, perhaps only in the lady's mind, and she was feeling a little guilty, hence the rebuff. — Another Minister

Dear A.M.: You are right when you say the widow should have told the pastor how she felt about him coming to call in casual attire. I believe, however, that appearances do count for something. No matter how saintly, I would not like to have my rabbi call on me in his swimming trunks.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year-old girl who is considered cute but not beautiful.

I have a problem I can't talk about to anyone. They'd think

I was trying to be a sex-pot, but I'm not. What I want to do is build up my bust.

Do you know of any exercises I can take that might help? How about the creams I see advertised in the magazines? Are they any good? How long will it be before people start noticing me? — Not Flat But Needing More

Dear Not Flat But Needing: Do you mean noticing YOU — or them? My advice is to raise your sights a few inches. A young girl's personality and how she relates to people are of far greater significance than her mammary dimensions. There is very little evidence that the bust-developing exercises do any good and the creams you see advertised are a rip-off.

Dear Ann: When a guy is engaged (ring and all) and he drops his 23-year-old fiancée off at her apartment at midnight, and goes to another girl's apartment for a few hours, you call him a skunk.

What would you call an engaged girl who did the same thing? — Just Askin'

Dear Just: Are you the guy? If so — why call her anything? In fact, why call her at all? Exit now, Bub. Your first markdown is the cheapest.

Swinging time

A baby gorilla named Upweke (meaning Independence in Swahili) and his mother Tunaka, swing in their cage at the Bronx Zoo in New York. Upweke, born July 3, is the second born to Tunaka and the fourth low-land gorilla born at the zoo in the last four years.

Association of American
Physicians and Surgeons
Reaffirms Resolution

A resolution in opposition to the use of public water supply as a vehicle for drugs was made by the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Inc. in San Francisco by the Assembly and Delegates on April 12, 1958.

The resolution has been re-affirmed each year since its adoption.

The resolution is as follows:

WHEREAS, the right to determine what shall be done to one's own body is fundamental, and

WHEREAS, water is necessary for life, and

WHEREAS, many people are dependent on public supplies for water.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Inc., assembled in San Francisco, California this 12th day of April, 1958, condemns the addition of any substance to public water supplies for the purpose of affecting the bodies or the bodily or mental functions of the consumers.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the members of Congress, the Governors of the several states, and the mayors of our principal cities, and released to the media of public information.
